"The Lord is good: a stronghold in the day of trouble."

REPORT OF THE SEVENTH REUNION, 1902.

The Association of the descendants of John White met as a basket picnic at Wachusett Park, Westminster, Mass., August 27, 1902. At an early hour the cousins of various degrees began to assemble. Registering and social greetings were in order until 11.15 A.M., when the President, John B. White of Kansas City, Mo., called the Association to order in the pavilion, for the business meeting. Vice President J. F. White of Somerville, Mass., offered prayer. President White briefly addressed the Association, thanking them for their confidence in him and the honor that had been bestowed upon him even though circumstances had prevented his being present at the last annual reunion And with an eloquence born of his own zeal in the cause, urged that honest, faithful work be done to insure the perpetuity of the Association.

The Secretary, Miss Myra L. White of Haverhill, Mass., read the records of the last regular session and also the action of the Executive Committee at its meeting in May, all of which was approved as read. The Treasurer submitted as a report, the statement that the contribution taken at the last session paid all bills then received, but left the treasury bare of funds. That later a bill for printing, etc. amounting to . . . . was presented. That there would also be a bill for the printing of the call for this meeting. That the only source of revenue now is the membership fee of one dollar ($1.00), which is wholly inadequate to meet the expenses of the Association. That there is now a deficit of . . . . and urged that some measures be devised at once to relieve the strain, and suggested that annual dues from each member of the Association, if it were only twenty-five cents would greatly assist, and then added: "The White's ought to be able to run the Association clear of debt." The President remarked that annual dues would cover every need. Mr. J. H. Leavitt of Iowa moved that an annual due of twenty-five cents (25 cts.) be levied upon each member of the Association. The motion was duly seconded and remarks in support of the motion were made by Miss Myra L. White of Haverhill, Mass., George A. White of Franklin Park, Mass., Mr. Wilmot V. White of Cincinnati, Ohio, Wm. Fred White of Ashburnham, Mass., Byron A. White of Parkersburg, W. Va., Horace White of Richville, N. Y., and others. The original motion was amended by W. V. White to make the annual dues of gentlemen fifty cents (50 cts.) and ladies twenty-five cents (25 cts.) Amendment accepted by Mr. Leavitt. The Treasurer moved to amend, that the motion take effect immediately upon its passage. Accepted by Mr Leavitt. Mr. Horace White expressed the thought that members should not only pay the annual dues, but should also interest themselves to add new members to the Association. After much discussion the question was called, (the President asking for a rising vote) and was declared carried unanimously.

The next order of business was the election of officers. On motion it was voted the chair appoint a committee of five to bring in a list of nominations for the several officers.

The chair appointed:

J. H. Leavitt, of Iowa.
W. V. White, of Ohio.
Myra L. White, of Massachusetts.
H. A. Knight, of Massachusetts.
Horace White, of New York.

The committee retired and during their absence the Treasurer was exceedingly busy gathering in the annual dues.

The committee on nominations reported as follows:

Pres., John B. White, Kansas City, Mo.
1st Vice Pres., George S Houghton, Reading, Mass.
2d Vice Pres., Joseph H. White, Antwerp, N. Y.
3d Vice Pres, Lucius A. Warner, Beacon Falls, Ct.
4th Vice Pres., Hon. John W. Kimball, Fitchburg, Mass.
5th Vice Pres., John F. White, Somerville, Mass.
6th Vice Pres., Mrs. Sarah A. Morrison, Tidioute, Pa.
7th Vice Pres., Henry R. Smith, Leominster, Mass.
8th Vice Pres., Henry D. White, Grand Valley, Pa.
9th Vice Pres., Charles H. White, Grandin, Mo.
10th Vice Pres., Milo S. Harrington, Westminster, Mass.
Treas., Geo. A. White, Franklin Park, Mass.
Sec'y., Miss Myra L. White, Haverhill, Mass.

The report was accepted and adopted by a unanimous vote.

In motion it was voted to meet next year at Lancaster. In motion it was voted to adjourn and the President declared the business meeting of the reunion of 1902 adjourned.

Those bringing baskets then gathered in groups at the convenient tables scattered about the Park; while those from a distance enjoyed the bountiful dinner provided by Mr. A. L. Harrington of the Summit House, Mt. Wachusett.

The afternoon was spent in examining the first and second volumes of the family genealogy, making new and renewing old acquaintances. Many of those present improved the opportunity to visit Redemption Rock on the opposite side of Lake Wachusett, where in 1676, John White's daughter Mary, Mrs. Joseph Rowlandson, was redeemed from the Indians by the General Court of Boston, Mr. John Hoar of Concord being the ambassador. Some years since Senator George F. Hoar of Worcester, purchased the rock and had the following inscription placed upon it:

"Upon this rock, May 2nd, 1676, was made the agreement for the ransom of Mrs. Mary Rowlandson of Lancaster between the Indians and John Hoar of Concord. King Philip was with the Indians, but refused his consent."

He has since presented it to his nephew John Hoar of Concord, namesake of their first ancestor. Short but interesting speeches were in order at the rock and pictures were taken by F. W. Park. Returning to the Park the meeting was adjourned, all expressing satisfaction and a desire to meet again. Among those present were:

184. Herbert A. Emory,[9] b. Feb. 3, 1851; was drowned at Salisbury beach, Aug. 20, 1876, while bathing. He was engaged to a young lady who was spending a week or two there. Mr. Emory left Boston on Saturday evening and intended to return on Monday. Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock he went into the water and ventured out so far, either his strength failed or the undertow drew him in, possibly both. The beach at the time was crowded with people, but few realized he was drowning. He made no outcry but finally a boat was shoved off with one man in it, who threw a rope to the young man, which was washed away from his grasp, and he sank never to rise again. His body was recovered in forty minutes and the next day arrived in Fitchburg, where it was interred. Just one month to a day preceding his death he attended the funeral of his nephew, Henry D. Yerxa, Jr. At the time of his death he was employed by his brother-in-law in the store of Cobb, Bates & Yerxa.

DEATHS.

Rev. Eldad Holmes Rowlandson[8] (4854), Vol. I, p. 414, died at his home in Brooklyn, N. Y., Aug. 15, 1900, aged 74 years. He was a clergyman in the Methodist Church, but his health failing in early life, he was unable to attend to the duties of a pastor, but was ever a prominent worker in Faith Mission, with which he had been identified for many years; he retained his love for that organization to the last in a marked manner. Mr. Rowlandson was a worker and organizer in temperance circles, established the first order of the Cadets of Temperance and also became prominent in the Sons of Temperance and Good Templars.

He was teller in the First National Bank of Brooklyn for twenty-six years and later bookkeeper of the Preston Fertilizer Co. of Blissville, and although his life was a busy one, even when sickness had impaired his strength; yet he ever had an eye to see, and a willing heart and hand to help those in need of his assistance. He was eminently a pure and true Christian gentleman and only those who best knew and loved him could adequately mourn his loss, for they alone could measure his worth.

Dr. Charles Kendall Adams[8] (10003), Vol. II, p. 86, died July 29, 1902, at Redlands, Cal., where he had gone for his health. Dr. Adams had been in poor health for several years. While president of the University of Wisconsin he was granted a long leave of absence, going to Europe, where he seemed to recuperate. A few months after returning to his work at the university he resigned and went to California.

Professor Adams long held high rank as an educator. He was born in Derby, Vt., Jan. 4, 1835, and received his preliminary education in the common schools and academy of Derby. In 1856, he removed to Iowa with his parents and began the study of Greek and Latin at Denmark Academy. The following year he was admitted to the University of Michigan, and during his four years of college life was almost exclusively dependent upon his own efforts to secure the money for his education and support. During the third and fourth years he was assistant librarian of the university and in charge of one of the lower classes. In 1864, he was appointed instructor in Latin and history, and in 1885, became president of Cornell University. Under his management Cornell forged to the front among the great colleges of America. In January, 1893, he accepted the presidency of the University of Wisconsin. He was the author of "Democracy and Monarchy in France," Manual of Historical Literature" and other successful books, and received the degree of LL.D. from the University of Chicago and from Harvard.

Mrs. Betsey Bertha (Lee-Brigham) White, third wife of Tarbel H. White[7] (7407), Vol. I, p. 630. She died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. W. E. Blanchard, in Lynn, Mass., Aug. 20, 1902. Mrs. White was born in West Boylston, Mass., Dec. 15, 1822, daughter of Benjamin and Eunice (Lesure) Lee. On March 30, 1842, she was married to Stephen B. Brigham of West Boylston, who died June 6, 1856, and she married second, Nov. 10, 1861, Tarbel H. White of West Boylston, who died Dec. 29, 1867. She left two daughters by her first marriage, Mrs. Eunice Kitchener of Oakland, Cal. and Mrs. W. E. Blanchard of Lynn.

Died in Bloomington, Ill., May 14, 1902, Dr. John Lane White[7] (13637), p. 362, Vol. II. He graduated at the Harvard Medical School in the class of 1854, and during the last year of his professional studies he was house physician at the Massachusetts General hospital. In 1870, he took up his residence in Bloomington, and has since resided there. He served two terms in the lower house of the Illinois legislature, and was vice-president of the Third National bank of Bloomington. He had been Grand Commander of the Knights Templar of Illinois, and was one of the most prominent Masons of the state For thirty years he was surgeon for the Chicago & Alton and Illinois Central railroads, and had occupied numerous other positions of responsibility. A widow and two children survive him.

Henry Knox Baker[7] (15458) Vol. II, p. 551. Judge Baker died June 28, 1902 at his home in Hallowell, Me., aged ninety-five. Judge Baker was born at Canaan, now Skowhegan, Dec. 2, 1806. At fourteen he went to Hallowell, to learn the printer's trade. Before Mr. Baker was twenty-one years old he had been for two years employed as editor of the Hallowell Gazette. When he came of age the Gazette was discontinued, and he became editor of the American Advocate. At the same time he entered the law office of John Otis as assistant.

He continued his connection with the Advocate for several years. Later the Advocate and Free Press were united, retaining the name of the latter paper, and he was associated with R. D. Rice in the management. In the meantime he had been prosecuting his law studies, and not finding the printing business especially remunerative he sold his interest in the Free Press and in 1840 was admitted to the bar.

In 1842 and 1844 Mr. Baker was elected to the legislature from Hallowell. In 1844 he was placed on the judiciary committee with A. P. Morrill and other able men. In 1844, when Mr. Baker was reelected to the legislature, he was made chief commissioner of education in the house.

In 1855, Mr. Baker was appointed judge of probate by Gov. A. P. Morrill. The same year the law was changed and the office made elective. This office he held and faithfully administered for twenty-five years, during which time he revised the whole probate laws. He was especially noted for his liberality in the matter of widows' allowances.

He was interested in every movement to benefit either the city or the state. Hallowell was made a city in 1852, and he was a member of the city government in some capacity during eighteen years, after which he declined further service. He audited the accounts for town and city twenty-seven years without pay.

In 1844, he became a member of the Methodist church in Hallowell, where he was a class leader and teacher of a Bible class for more than forty years. Though leading a very busy life he found time for extensive reading and contributed much to the press both in poetry and prose. In 1879, he made his first visit to Europe, joining a Tourjee party for that purpose, and in 1883, he made a second tour with his grandson, R. H. Rice, making a more extended tour of Scotland, Ireland, England and Wales.

When about ninety-two years of age, he had the misfortune to break his hip, which confined him to the house; but previous to that time his figure was seen daily on the street and he attended to his duties as treasurer of the Hallowell Savings Bank. In all the varied duties of a busy life he was able, faithful and true, caring more for the good of those around him than for the accumulation of wealth and those only who knew him well could appreciate his many virtues and will mourn the ending of a long and useful life.

Mrs. Almira Frances (Rand) Leavitt[8] (4301), Vol. I, p. 377, wife of John F. Leavitt and daughter of Sherburne W. and Laura S. [White[7] (4231)] Rand of Exeter, N. H.; died at her home in Portsmouth, N. H., August 2, 1902, aged nearly 64 years. Though a frail child she was the only one of nine children who lived beyond the age of twenty-one She tenderly cared for her parents in their declining years; and had lived to see four of her six children grow to maturity, and had enjoyed for a brief time her three grandchildren, the children of her only surviving son, Frank S. Leavitt. All who knew her felt that she was a woman of most estimable character, of broad mind and most ready sympathies, a consistent Christian. While she seldom had strength or time to do much outside of her family, to whom she was most devoted, she was always intelligently interested in what was going on in the world and especially in the work of the church, she gave of her means and sympathy whenever possible. She united with the Congregational Church in Exeter, when young, taking a letter from there to the Methodist Church in Portsmouth after her marriage, where she had been a member for thirty-five years. She was also a member of the Ladies' Aid and Foreign Mission Societies, of the Woman Relief Corp and of the Auxiliary of Y. M. C. A. She was always strongly and loyally attached to her relatives, no member of the White Family was more interested in its reunions, although she was able to attend but one of them, she with her daughter Martha attending the reunion in Haverhill in 1900.

To her husband and children the memory of her high ideals, her teachings and her example will always be an inspiration to the best living.

"She being dead, yet speaketh."

Mrs. May Whitney (White) Gilman[8] (4295), Vol. I, p. 377, wife of Gardner S. Gilman, died in Lowell, Mass., September 25, 1902. She was born in Moultonborough, N. H., Dec. 16, 1849; being the youngest child of Timothy F. and Irene (Hodsdon) White[7] (4229). Her marriage to Mr. Gilman took place in Ipswich, Mass., May 16, 1868. The most of their married life was spent in Lowell, although for a short time they lived in Laconia and Belmont, N. H., where they joined the Freewill Baptist Church.

Mrs. Gilman had been an invalid for many years previous to her death yet she bore bravely all her sufferings, having a care of her home and taking a great interest in all her loved ones. When her strength would not permit of other work, she did beautiful needlework which she delighted to give away and which will be treasured by those who loved her while here, and miss her sadly now she is gone.

Besides her husband she left one son Harold Woodbury Gilman of Lowell, and one daughter Gracie Irene, wife of Walter B, Hall of Pontiac, R. I,, also one grandson Richard Gilman Hall, and two brothers and five sisters, one of them Miss Myra L. White.

"In my Father's house are many mansions."

Mrs. Clarissa P. (Lake) White, wife of Horace White[8] (7709) Vol I, p. 654, d. in her home in Richville, N. Y., Apr. 28, 1902, she was a devoted wife, a loving mother and faithful friend, and her loss will be deeply mourned by those who had the benefit of her acquaintance.

Mrs. Wealthy H. (Shepard) Cooley[7] (8270), Vol. I, p. 715, died May 13, 1902.

Mrs. Louisa (Russell) Hutt, wife of Jeremiah Hutt[8] (17281) Vol. II, p. 679, died in Clinton Mass., Sept. 15, 1902.

Rufus B. Carter, husband of Melinda Hutt[9] (17824), Vol. II, p. 717, died in Leominster, Mass., Nov. 26, 1901.

J. Curtis Whitcomb[8] (19397), Vol. II, p. 780, died in Leominster, Mass., Mar. 1, 1900.

Mrs. Clara E. (Gowing) Bixby, wife of Byron R. Bixby[9] (13320), Vol. II, p. 341, died in North Charlestown, N.H., Nov. 22, 1902.

Mrs. Rosann (Wilder) Beaman, wife of Eri B. Beaman[7] (14354), Vol. II, p. 417-778, died in Laconia, N. H., Jan. 6, 1902.

QUERIES.

(Queries are inserted for one cent a word. Answers are solicited.)

1. White. Wanted, the descendants or any knowledge in regard to them or their families, of John White, born in Leominster in 1742. In 1806, he had nine children and seventeen grandchildren. He was a soldier in the Revolution, but we have been unable to learn the name of his wife or their place of residence.

2. Samuel White, a soldier in the Revolution, born in Leominster in 1744; m. in Leominster, Apr. 22, 1773, Hannah Platts, had Diadama, born in Leominster, Feb. 6, 1774. In 1806, he had had ten children and fourteen grandchildren.

3. Abijah White, a soldier in the Revolution, born in Leominster in 1751. In 1802, was living in Rockingham or Springfield, Vermont, with wife Polly or Mary, where he left two children buried in the "Old Parker Burying-ground," at Springfield. In 1806, had had nine children and four grandchildren.

4. Susannah White, born in Leominster in 1750; married Richard Prouty and in 1806 had had fourteen children and twenty-six grandchildren.

5. Ruth White, born in Leominster in 1753; married Ephraim Knopleh (?) and in 1806 had had twelve children and sixteen grandchildren.

6. Asa White, born in Leominster in 1755, moved with his father to Charlestown, N. H., and later to Rockingham, Vt., where he was a soldier in the Revolution. He married Sept. 11, 1776, Jane Arwin. He died Aug. 27, 1781, and his widow Jane had married before 1794, Isaac Stearns. In 1806, they had two children and nine grandchildren. Lovice White, daughter of Asa, married in Rockingham, Sept. 3, 1798, Elijah, son of Ezra and Ruth Bellows, baptised in Lunenburg, Mass., Sept. 6, 1778. They lived in Rockingham, where they had two children, Quartus Bellows, who was a sailor and resided in New Bedford, Mass., and Eveline Bellows of whom no further record has been found.

The above were children of Josiah,[4] (153) p. 68, Vol. I, and Deborah (House) White. He is buried at Rockingham, Vt. and on his tombstone it gives the number of his children, grandchildren and great grandchildren. As I am compiling a genealogy of the family, I would be very glad to hear from any of these families.

MRS. LUCY (CARTER) CUSHING.

Taken on her 92d Birthday.

WHITE FAMILY QUARTERLY.

VOLUME I. APRIL, 1903. NUMBER II.

"The Lord is good: a stronghold in the day of trouble."

MRS. LUCY (CARTER) CUSHING.

MRS. LUCY (Carter) Cushing[7] (9333) Vol. II, p. 45, d. in Vernon, Vt., Mar. 14, 1902, aged 92 years; b. in Vernon, Newfane Hill, Sept. 22, 1809. Mrs. Cushing was well born and had an ingrained inheritance of thrift and energetic industry. She was a woman who had a settled conviction for doing the right as she saw it and was very modest, though possessing firmness and strength of character. This is not intended as a eulogy, for at best we all are imperfect, but as a just remembrance of one whose long and active life was spent to help and cheer those around her; for she was truly a remarkable woman in every sense of the word and retained her mental faculties even in her advanced age, and seemed so bright and interesting that people enjoyed meeting and talking with her, as she remembered so much of the past. She often had expressed a wish to be at rest and join those who had gone before; she was a sincere Christian and was prepared for the joys that await the redeemed in the other and brighter world. She was very fond of flowers and the beauty of her garden showed with what loving care they were tended and she was ever ready to share them with a neighbor. Mrs. Cushing was the second daughter of Capt. Chandler and Lucy (Kenney) Carter; grand-daughter of Elias and Deborah (White) Carter; married Sept. 23, 1829, Warren Cushing of Newfane, Vt., where their married life was spent on a farm until the death of her husband in 1872; at this time Mrs. Cushing moved to the village where she had cared for herself in her own little home until a short time before her death, when she went to Vernon to visit her son; she contracted pneumonia and lived but a few days. Her three children survive her, Mrs Joel Page of Groton, Mass., Warren C. Cushing of Vernon and Baxter C. Cushing of Newfane; also three grandchildren, Miss Ethel and Mr. Carl Cushing, children of Warren and Edward Page of Clinton, Mass., besides her youngest sister Mrs. Eudosia (Carter) Case of Lansing, Mich., now nearly eighty-five years of age. Mrs. Cushing was a member of the Congregational church and Woman's Christian Temperance Union and felt to the last a lively interest in the affairs of the day.

Mrs. ELIZA M. (Tuthill), wife of Baxter C. Cushing[8] (9498), vol II., p. 63, d. at her home in Newfane, Vt., May 2, 1902. She was born in Townsend, Vt., Nov. 21, 1847; she was educated at Leland and Gray seminary and taught school several years before her marriage, Aug. 30, 1876, being Mr. Cushing's second wife. This death coming so soon after the death of his mother seemed very hard to bear.

MRS. LUCY Candace (Burnap) Frost[8] (9494), vol II., p. 62, wife of James Burnap Frost of Brattleboro, Vt., being born upon the farm where he now lives and where Mrs. Frost died May 29, 1902; she was born in Newfane, Vt., Feb. 24, 1834, daughter of Deacon Asa and Ellen E. (Carter) Burnap; granddaughter of Capt. Chandler and Lucy (Kenney) Carter; m. Mar. 29, 1857. She was a kind and affectionate wife and mother, devoting herself to her family and had taught them the beauty of holiness. Her sweet influence has been appreciated, she has not lived in vain, and they will miss her more and more as the days go by. The following lines were found by her son among his mother's papers.

"One by one we cross the river
One by one we're ferried o'er,
One by one the crowns are given
On the bright and golden shore
Youth and childhood oft are passing
O'er the dark and rolling tide,
And the white-robed angel boat-man
Bears them o'e r the swelling tide.

One by one we come to Jesus,
As we hear His gentle voice
One by one His vineyard enter
There to labor and rejoice.
One by one sweet flowers we gather
In the glorious work of love,
And the white-robed angel boatman
Bears them to the realms above."

DR. E. EDWIN Spencer (husband of Annie E. C. White[7] (15854), vol. II., p. 543) died at his home in Cambridge, Mass., Jan. 19, 1903; Dr. Spencer was born in North Kingston, R. I., Feb. 4, 1833, son of Esek and Maria Spencer and descended from good farmer stock. He worked on the farm while attending school at East Greenwich academy. From there he went to the Eclectic Medical College of Cincinnati, Ohio, from which he graduated with high honors in 1856. While in Ohio, he worked in the office of Prof. Robert Safford Newton. Upon graduating, he went to Winchendon, Mass., in the office of Dr. Robert Walker Geddes and while there graduated from the Worcester Medical College in 1859. In 1860, refusing an offer to become one of the faculty of the Cincinnati college, he began to practise in Templeton, Mass. On Aug. 31, 1871, he married Miss Annie E. C. White of Ashburnham, who died Jan. 25, 1901. In 1873, Dr. Spencer settled in Cambridge and resided there continuously until the time of his death. He was made city physician and held the office for some years. In 1891, was appointed to the board of health of which he was elected chairman in 1893. The many-sided activity of the man was made evident by the large number of societies in which he took a prominent part. He was a charter member of the Massachusetts Eclectic Medical society, of which he was a former president, and at the time of his death, the treasurer; this office he had held for fifteen years. He was a member of the Boston District Medical Association, of which he had been president; of the National Eclectic Medical Society; of the Massachusetts State Association of Boards of Health; and a former president of the Art Circle, of which he was chairman of the literature section at the time of his death. He was also one of the pension examiners of Massachusetts. Another side of Dr. Spencer's character less generally known, but worthy of the greatest praise, was his unfailing charity. Many are the poor families which have been treated by him and from whom he refused to take any recompense for his services. He leaves a daughter, Miss Edna Lawrence Spencer, and a sister, Mrs. Alice A. Geddes.

DR. JAMES I. Scollard, husband of Ellen R. White[7] (13638), vol. II., p. 363, died at his home in Clinton, N. Y., Feb. 20, 1903. He was born in Springfield, N. Y., Mar. 30, 1824, son of William R. Scollard. He moved with his parents to Manlius, N. Y., and when but a young man, became interested in medicine and studied in the office of Dr. Numf of that village. He attended the medical college at Albany, N. Y., where he received his diploma. In 1849, he settled in Clinton and became associated with Dr. George Bissell, then a well known and prominent physician, whose practice he bought a few years later. Dr. Scollard was a successful physician and his practice extended over a great territory, being often called a great distance for consultation. Dr. Scollard was a man of large financial interests; by close attention to business and hard work, together with strict economic methods and honest dealings, he accumulated a large amount of property, both real and personal. He was a member of Clinton lodge, F. and A. M. Dr. Scollard was twice married, marrying (2) Apr. 4, 1865, Ellen Richards, dau. of Dr. John and Lucy Baron (Howe) White, b. in Westminster, Mass., Feb. 14, 1835. He leaves besides a wife, one son, Clinton Scollard, b. in Clinton, Sept. 18, 1860, the poet and novelist; he is a graduate of Hamilton College and was at one time professor of literature in that college; he married July 3, 1890, Georgia Brown of Jackson, Mich.; they have one daughter, Elizabeth Scollard. b. Oct. 4, 1899; they reside in Clinton.

JOHN Brooks Hastings[7] (11480), vol. II., p. 201, d. in Darien, Wis., June 12, 1902, at the age of eighty-six years. He was born in Pembroke, Genesee County, N. Y., Nov. 20, 1815, being the youngest of fourteen children, son of Solomon and Lucinda (White) Hastings. His parents were married and lived in Charlemont, Mass., and most, and we thought all of their children were born there, though we knew that they moved to Genesee County before the death of his father in 1828. He was one of the oldest settlers of Darien, going there from New York in 1843, and one year later purchased of Alden Stone, the farm of one hundred and forty acres which he owned at the time of his death, and where he lived until 1899, when failing health compelled him to give up active labor. In early life he combined teaching with farming for several years, then served as the town superintendent for three years and filled other positions of trust. Mr. Hastings married Nov. 12, 1846, Miss Maria Reed, who was b. in Pembroke, N. Y., Nov. 21, 1818 and who preceded him to the better life Sept. 30, 1882. To them five children were born, one dying in infancy and four are left to mourn their loss, Frank of Omaha, Neb., L. Edward, Kate and Octavus of Darien. His only daughter has lived at home to care for and comfort him in his declining years.

NEWTON Whitney, husband of Mary P. White[8] (4286), vol. I., p. 374, d. in Southampton, Mass., Jan. 30, 1902. Mr. Whitney was b. in Harvard, Mass., July 26, 1820; was a descendant of John Whitney[1], Richard[2], Moses[3], Jonas[4], Jonas[5], Salmon[6], Nathan[7], m. Nancy Farwell, and were the parents of Newton Whitney. He settled first in Chicopee, Mass., where he was an overseer in a cotton mill. He married (1) Jan. 6, 1848, Mary P. White, who d. in Chicopee, Aug. 9, 1849; he married (2) in 1868, Mrs. Louisa Hayward; they lived on a farm in Holyoke, Mass., where she d. Nov. 5, 1899; he afterwards sold his farm in Holyoke and went to Southampton to live with his son. He leaves besides two sisters, Myron B. Whitney, of St. Paul, Minn., the only child by his first wife, a step daughter, Mrs. Thomas Hawkes of Springfield, Mass., Charles Whitney of Southampton and George Whitney of Belchertown, Mass.

JEREMIAH Bingham Lamb[8] (8103), vol. I., p. 697, d. at his home in Springfield, Mass., Feb. 17, 1900, aged 72 years; he was b. in Philipston, Mass., Nov, 3, 1827, son of Ezra and Lucretia

Bingham (White) Lamb; his parents soon removed to Heath, Mass., where he remained until nearly twenty-one years of age, when he went to Worcester, Mass., to learn the carpenter's trade, which was his business through life. He m. Sept. 6, 1853, Rebecca Ann Hayden b. in Dixfield, Me., Aug. 2, 1831; he was a private in the civil war in Company D., Fifteenth Massachusetts Regiment, discharged Apr. 22, 1863 because of physical disability. In 1874 he settled in Springfield, Mass., where Mrs. Lamb and their two daughters, Mrs. Arthur E Noyes and Mrs. Ernest A. Sturtevant still reside.

MRS. LUCY M. (Glidden) White, wife of Nelson White[6] (16055) vol. II, p. 789, d. in Flushing, Mich., Apr. 2, 1902, aged eighty-two years, leaving one daughter, Mrs. Rufus J. Penoyer of Flushing.

Corrections and Additions.

REV. JOHN Peirce,[8] (66) b. in Lunenburg, Mass., Mar. 18, 1814; He had a strong, powerful and penetrating mind; he worked on his father's farm until seventeen years of age, then went to Boston to live with Mr. Osgood, a merchant. Returned in a short time to Lancaster, Mass., where he remained until twenty-one years of age, when he went to Boston upon the advice of Rev. Thomas Whittemore, began to pursue the study of the English language, preparatory to a study for the ministry. He entered the academy and in 1836 he preached his first sermon in his native town to the astonishment and gratification of all who heard him. In 1837 he preached in Hardwick, Mass., and Dana the following year. In 1839 he preached in Lunenburg and Shirley Village; and in 1840 he engaged to labor with the societies in Lunenburg and Townsend. He soon faltered under disease and d. Aug. 31, 1840. The funeral was held in the church of which he was pastor and was very largely attended.

FIRST PARISH CHURCH, LANCASTER, MASS.

WHITE FAMILY QUARTERLY.

VOLUME I. JULY, 1903. NUMBER III.

"The Lord is good: a stronghold in the day of trouble."

1653.——1903.

All roads led to Lancaster June thirtieth. I travelled with the throng, each claiming citizenship in greater Lancaster. The grand old town was as bright as a June morning could make it, and this morning it had taken on additional brilliancy by the lavish display of the "Red, White and Blue," in almost every conceivable form. The magnificent Elms that make the streets such beautiful promenades, seemed to hold themselves proudly erect. The "Big Elm" that has bidden defiance to time and tempest, seemed to deport itself with even more grace and dignity than was its wont. The old church that could tell us so many tales, conld the pulpit, the pew and the walls speak, opened its arms at the appointed hour to receive the vast multitude.

A silence that could be felt fell upon that immense throng as the venerable Pastor, who for more than half a century has taught the people, by precept and practice, of the love of God and brotherhood of man, rose to speak words of welcome. And as the grand old organ pealed forth notes of welcome, of gratitude, of praise and of hope, the warm, throbbing life of that great audience was touched.

The orator of the day delivered a splendid oration; splendid under any other circumstances, but, to me at least, disappointing in that he sought to cover so much of God's great earth. Why couldn't the honorable gentleman given us a little more Lancaster, and a little less of the wide, wide world?

Then the chief marshal formed the lines and they marched to the banquet-tent, twenty-five hundred strong, where they all sat down at one great table. Such an hour Lancaster had never seen.

The Governor of the Commonwealth; men who have received high honors in civil and political life; the clergyman; the professional man; the old soldier; all had come at Lancaster's bidding.

This was our first visit to Lancaster, and we could not spare the time for the dinner and the speeches in the great tent. So we went to the Inn, and "mine host" served us with a charming dinner, and the hour was very profitably spent, for we were with our own people. We saw many familiar faces from the "Association of the Descendants of John White of Lancaster." Mr. John B. White of Kansas City, the honored president of the association, was there; Mr. George S. Houghton of Reading, Mass., the first vice president, and his wife; the secretary and historian, Miss Myra L. White of Haverhill, Mass.; Mr. and Mrs. Herbert H. White of Hartford, Conn.; Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Houghton of Baltimore, Md.; Mr. Gilman B. Howe and Mrs. Sarah J. B. Carpenter of Northboro, Mass., and many others from Leominster, Clinton and the surrounding towns. We used all the time there was to use in our effort to "see what our fathers saw." The old Homestead on the "Neck." Our feet actually treading the very places where the feet of our ancestors must have been. Mr. Herbert White adjusted his camera and "took us all in", with the house that now stands on the old homestead, (if I didn't hoodoo the whole thing—I have good luck at that). Later we sought out the "lone pine tree" that stands as a grim sentry, ever guarding the spot where occurred the terrible tragedy of the Rowlandson Garrison House in 1676. The site of the first meeting house when Rev. Joseph Rowlandson ministered to the people. The old cemetery, with its ancient headstones that mark the resting places of Lancaster's good and great of centuries long gone. After some search we found the old, old cemetery, where repose the dead of the early days. Is it here that John and his wife Joane, and Josiah of the second generation and some of his family, were laid at rest? Who can tell? History is silent. Had our fathers known how succeeding generations would search for proofs of the past, many things that are very dim or wholly unseen would they have writ in letters large and clear.

The hour was getting late and we must say good-bye to Lancaster, beautiful, beautiful old Lancaster.

JOHN F. WHITE,

Somerville, Mass.

WILLIAM Johnson,[1] b. in Canterbury, Kent county, England, 1602; m. Elizabeth Story in 1630. He was in Charlestown, Mass., as early as 1634. By trade he was a brick-maker, and belonged to the class of settlers that had the means of providing a home for themselves, and meeting the charges incident to a new plantation. Like the other settlers of Charlestown who had families, he was assigned an homestead of two acres. This was situated upon the main street. He also received, at the same time, an allotment of ten acres in the "Great Corn Field." He had a share in the division of Malden lands in 1638, and, in addition, in 1658, received as his proportionate share of the "Mystick side land," 27 acres of woodland and 4 1/2 acres of Common land. He also had three rights in the "new commons." Though not in public office, his successful management of his affairs, throughout the trying period of building up a new town, shows him to have been a man of energy and method in business, and his characteristic handwriting and style of composition show him to have possessed a good education. William and wife Elizabeth were admitted to the church in Charlestown, in 1635. He was made freeman in March, 1635. His will is dated Dec. 7, 1677. His wife Elizabeth d. about 1686. Children:

JONATHAN Johnson[2] (5), b. in Charlestown, Mass., Aug. 14, 1641, was one of the petitioners for the town of Marlboro, Mass , and moved there in 1662. He m. Oct. 14, 1663, Mary, dau. of Richard and Anne Newton of Marlboro, b. in 1644. This was the first marriage recorded in Marlboro. Jonathan was the first blacksmith in the town. In those days the blacksmith's trade was considered the highest of mechanical arts. Almost anybody could use the saw, auger and shave, and half frame a house or barn by the "try rule" but only a skilled workman could weld and temper iron and steel. And as most kitchen utensils as well as the farming and other tools were, in whole or in part, hand wrought, the blacksmith was an essential to every household, and was honored accordingly. Hence in most of the early towns a house lot and all its accruing rights and privileges was set apart for a blacksmith. The only other office to which such a gift was made was the minister. And it is a fact worthy of notice that when the house lots in Marlboro were assigned to the proprietors, Nov. 26, 1660, the lots of the minister and blacksmith were of equal size, that is thirty acres. His lot was one of the most eligible in the village, being located directly south of the Old Common. Being thus central, his shop was the general resort for news and the general transaction of business. Public notices were usually required to be posted here. The "smith" preceded the "tavern" by many years. In his later years he was employed as the schoolmaster of the town. In December, 1699, he taught in his dwelling house before a schoolhouse was erected in town in 1700. He appears to have been greatly prosperous in his business, as shown by his ability to purchase house lots, and other land whenever they came into market. His handwriting, samples of which exist in deeds and other documents, indicate a man of marked individuality and force of character He wrote his will but a few years before his death, at the age of seventy, yet the bold, clear cut letters would do credit to a practical penman. He was well educated for the times. He was one of the selectmen of Marlboro, in 1711, and d. Apr. 21, 1712, aged 71. His wife Mary d. Dec. 28. 1728, aged 84. Children:

THE WILL OF THOMAS WHITE, MERCHANT IN ROTTERDAM, DATED 6 AUGUST 1639.

I bequeath to Robert Eaton, my gold ring which is upon my finger, and one hat; and another hat to his wife; and six pair of hose to their children.

I give to Abraham Shepperd, one hat, and to William Hampstead one hat, both which hats they have already received from me.

Item, to my mother and my eldest brother, to each of them a token in remembrance of me, such as my executor shall think fit.

Residuary legatee and executor:—my brother John White; and he shall have a gold ring for himself, and another for my sister, his wife, as good as he shall think meet.

I will that my brother bestow the overplus amongst my sisters and their children, at his discretion.

(signed) THO. WHITE.

Witnesses:—Robert Eaton; William Hempsted.

Proved, 19 November 1639, by the executor named.

CLARKE 125.

THE WILL OF THOMAS WHITE, OF STRATFORD LANGTHORNE, LATE CITIZEN AND HABERDASHER OF LONDON, DATED 4 AUGUST 1625.

'I bequeath my body to be buried in the churchyard where God shall please to call for me, which is very uncertain, as all other outward things always are, wherein my will is that there be but 50 li. only laid out, whereof 45 poor men shall have given them 6s. 8d. apiece, and 4 li. to be given in bread and money to the poor, if God take me away by this visitation.

Item, I bequeath to Anne White, my wife, 800 li., with all my household stuff and plate, except one silver gilt salt; and the lease of the Woolsack, of which four years is now past, she paying the yearly rent of 19 li. to Mr. Thomas Bows. And she shall enjoy the rent at Brantam for her life.

I give to my son John, 400 li. at his age of 21. If he die before that age, 10 li. thereof shall go to Anne White, daughter of my brother William White; 10 li. to my sister Anne Jackson's Children; 10 li. to my sister Margaret Eyer's daughter, and 20 li. to my wife to dispose of at her pleasure.

Item, to my daughter Anne White, 400 li., at her age of 21, or marriage; and one "feildbedstle" and all the bedding as it standeth in the great "darnix" Chamber in Stratford Langthorne over the parlour.

To my daughter Sarah White 400 li. as above.

I bequeath to my son Thomas White, 400 li. when 21.

To my eldest son Stephen White, 400 li. at his age of 21, and the silver gilt salt, weighing some eighteen oz. Also my half part of the "Little Susan," now gone on a voyage for Legorne, whereof is master Mr. William Person, and all the adventure I have in the said "Susan" in company with Mr. John Lamott; and the lease of the Woolsack in Lombard St., which is to commence after the expiration of the lesse which my wife is to enjoy. Also I paid 60 li. to Mr. Nathaniel Wright, which if he doth not take my son on the 28th of September next and give him employment in foreign parts, my will is that said the Steven shall receive the 60 li. for his own proper use.

Item, to my brother William White of Colchester, 40 li.

To my sister Margaret Eyre, 30 li. to be paid into the hands of my cousin Thomas Branston of Eastberghout, and my uncle Edmond Branston, to be by them ordered for the good of my said sister.

To my cousin Thomas Jackson, 10 li. at the age of 21.

Item, to Jane Jackson all the linen, pewter and plate which is in spons, for which I paid to the landlord of my brother Mathewe Jackson 10 li., and have a bill of sale made to me for the same.

To Mr. Shute, my partner, 5 li.

DEATHS.

Mrs Susan Clark (Jones) Stannus[8] (4125), Vol. I, p. 353, widow of Samuel Stannus of Tacoma, Wash., and dau. of Joab and Lydia (White) Jones, b. in Marietta, Ohio, Apr. 2, 1818, and great grand-daughter of Major Haffield White, who went as commissary and conductor of the first detachment of the "Ohio Company," which left Danvers, Mass., in December, 1787, for Washington county, Ohio (then the great North-west).

Mrs. Stannus was among the hardy pioneers who crossed the plains in 1853, locating in Benton county, Oregon. She was a woman of broad education and retained her love of books through all her later years. She moved with her husband, in 1885, to Tacoma, where he died Oct. 18, 1891; she died in Tacoma, at the home of her youngest daughter, Mrs. Emma S. Crowe, May 24, 1903. She leaves one son and three daughters, Leander Stannus of Moscow, Idaho; Mrs. Ella G. Litchfield of Watsonville, Cal.; Mrs. Rosa Hamlin of Watsonville; and Mrs. Crowe.

Although well advanced in years, she was very active, and but recently returned from a visit to her children in California. She will be greatly missed, not only by her children but by a large circle of friends, but they can truly say that "their loss is her gain."

Joseph Smith, husband of Nancy S. Brawn[8] (4271), Vol. I, p. 372, died in Moultonboro, N. H., May 14, 1903. He was son of James and Lydia (Perkins) Smith, born in Moltonboro, Oct. 4, 1822. His father dying in his childhood, he lived with his uncle, Joseph Smith of Moultonboro, where he was a farmer. Mrs. Nancy Smith died Mar. 16, 1886, and he married (2) Martha A. Lovejoy, who survives him. He leaves one son, Andrew J. Smith of Moultonboro, and two grandchildren.

Guy E. Carter[10] (9113), Vol. II, p. 21, born in Leominster, Mass., June 14, 1887, son of Everett M. and Louise M. (Wheeler[9]) Carter, was drowned in the lake at East Washacum, Sterling, Mass., July 9, 1903. He was in camp with the "Unitarian Boys' Club" of Leominster, of which he was a member, and had started with two of his companions to swim to the shore from a boat stationed out in the lake. Before the shore was reached, Guy's strength was exhausted and he sank in sight of his companions, and their efforts to help him were fruitless.

Guy was a member of the Leominster High School, class of 1904, and of the High School Cadets. He will be sadly missed by his young companions as well as his afflicted family.

Family Reunion

Nineteen hundred and three being the Two Hundred and Fiftieth Anniversary of John White's settlement in Lancaster, Massachusetts, the Association of his Descendants, will meet on Wednesday, September second, in the Town hall, Lancaster, for their Eighth Reunion.

At nine o'clock names will be registered, and an hour spent in social greetings; at ten-thirty the meeting will be open for business, followed by the family dinner.

Those living near will make it a basket picnic, but those from a distance, or any who wish, can have dinner at the Lancaster House, by notifying the Secretary on or before August 25th, that the arrangements may be perfected.

The afternoon will be devoted to literary exercises, and visiting the old homesteads, and other places of historic interest to the family.

Those wishing for the Association badge before the meeting can have it by sending $1.00, admission fee, with their name, to the Secretary.

Come one, come all, and let us make this a meeting long to be remembered—a fitting tribute to our Pioneer Ancestor.

Pres., John B. White, Kansas City, Mo.
Vice Pres., Geo. S. Houghton, Reading, Mass.

Reunion.

The eighth reunion of the Association was held in the town hall, Lancaster, Mass., September second, nineteen hundred three, about one hundred and fifty being present. A full report, with a list of those present, will appear in the Quarterly for January, nineteen hundred four.

Lines

WRITTEN ON A GENEALOGICAL WORK.

In eighteen hundred eighty-nine,
I began this work of mine;
For relatives and friends most dear,
I visited graveyards far and near;
While it gave me both pleasure and pain,
Naught would induce me to do it again;
Hoping you now are satisfied
That in the attempt I had not died.

MRS. H. A. T. WHITE.

Johnson.

1. Capt. EDWARD Johnson, the most remote ancestor, came from Herne Hill, a parish near Canterbury, England. He came, no doubt, in the fleet with Winthrop, 1630, and took oath of allegiance, May 18, 1631; he was the author of the curious history called "Wonder Working Providences of Sion's Savior in New England". After living some time in Charlestown or Salem, he went home to bring his wife Susanna, seven children and three servants, and settled in Charlestown in 1637, became one of the founders of the church in Woburn, was representative 1643-1671 except the year 1648, and was speaker in 1655, was town clerk almost thirty years and did other valuable service. His will of May 15, 1671, written with his own hand, names wife Susan or Susanna to whom he gives rents of his lands in old England and mansion and lands here in Woburn; his eldest son Edward and his son Edward to whom one quarter of the farm in the parish of Hernehill; son George and his son, the grandson George, to have dwelling-house and orchard at Waterham in the same parish; to sons William and Matthew and Matthew's eldest son and Edward son of William, part of the farm in Hernehill; to son John and his son, the grandson John, a small tenement in the same parish; also distinguishing these grandchildren; William, son of John; Catharine, daughter of Edward; Catharine, daughter of George; Esther, daughter of William; Rebecca, daughter of Matthew; Bethia, daughter of John; James, Susanna and Hannah, children of his son-in-law, James Prentice, whose wife was his daughter Susannah; and John, son of John Amee or Eames, and his eldest daughter whose name, I think, was Martha. He died April 23, 1672.—(From "Savage's Genealogical Dictionary", Vol. II.)

2. WILLIAM Johnson, b. in England, in 1629-30; freeman 1655, in Woburn; married May 16, 1655, Esther, daughter of Elder Thomas and Elizabeth (———) Wiswall of Dorchester. He was a representative in 1674-1676 and until 1683; a militia officer of every rank except the highest; one of the committee of safety; he was known as Major William. He was a generous and sturdy supporter of the old charter, so no favorite with Mather, who dictated the appointment at the court of William and Mary. He died May 22, 1704; his widow Dec. 27, 1707. Their children were: 1. William, b. Feb. 26, 1656; 2. Edward +; 3. Ebenezer, b. Mar. 29, 1659; 4. Esther, b. Apr. 13, 1662; m. Dec. 17, 1685, Seth Wyman; 5. Joseph, b. June 14, 1664; 6. Benjamin, b. Oct. 15, 1666; 7. Josiah, b. Jan. 15, 1669; 8. Susanna, b. June 29, 1671; 9. Abigail, b. Oct. 4, 1674.

3. Capt. EDWARD Johnson, b. in Woburn, Mass., Mar. 19, 1658; married (1) Jan. 12, 1686-7, Sarah, daughter of Samuel and Sarah (Reed) Walker, b. in Woburn, Mar. 6, 1660-1; and died May 31, 1704; he married (2) Abigail Gardener, who outlived her husband; he died Aug. 7, 1725. Children of Edward and Sarah: 1. Edward Jr., b. Oct. 12, 1687; d. Jan. 3, 1688; 2. Edward Jr. +; 3. Esther, b. Jan. 26, 1694; m. John Stearns, Jr.; 4. Samuel, b. Feb. 21, 1696; m. Feb. 19, 1724, Mary Butters;

5. Susanna, b. Jan. 14, 1701; m. May 23, 1722, Samuel Jones; 6; Ichabod, b. Apr. 22, 1703; d. in Lovewell's fight, May 8, 1725. Children of Edward and Abigail: 7. Elizabeth, b. Nov. 6, 1705; 8. Joseph, b. June 27, 1708.

4. Deacon EDWARD Johnson, born in Woburn, May 4, 1689; married (1) Rebecca, daughter of Capt. William and Abigail (Kendall) Reed; married (2) Dec. 13, 1750, Esther Coolidge; married (3) Feb. 19, 1755, Sarah Wilson; he died in 1773. They had children: Rebecca, born Apr. 22, 1712, married Feb. 24, 1736, Ebenezer Wyman; Mary, b. Oct. 26, 1713, married Enoch Richardson; Edward Jr., born Sept. 28, 1715; Joshua, born Feb. 16, 1717; Ebenezer, born Feb. 27, 1719; these three brothers settled in what is now Berlin, Mass.; Jonathan, born June 13, 1720, married Sept. 12, 1748, Sarah Wilson, died in Woburn, Nov. 30, 1793; Nathan, born Nov. 11, 1721, m. Sept. 30, 1749, Abigail Walker, resided in Leominster; Abigail, born July 15, 1723; married (1) Samuel Wilson, June 5, 1744, married (2) Nov. 10, 1751, Simeon Spaulding of Chelmsford; Ichabod, born Dec. 23, 1724; Lucy, born Jan. 3, 1726, died; Jonas, born Jan. 27, 1727, died 1759, in the French war; Asa, +; Susanna, born Oct. 24, 1731, married May 2, 1755, Joshua Kendall; they lived in Woburn.

5. ASA Johnson, b. in Woburn, Mass., Feb. 16, 1729; m. in Leominster, Feb. 22, 1753, Tamar[5] (683), dau. of Benjamin and Dorothy (White[4] 167) Whitcomb, b. in Lancaster, Mass., Mar. 28, 1735; her parents lived in the part of Lancaster which was set off in 1740, as the town of Leominster. This family is printed in volume second of the Descendants of John White, page 753, as far as the records could be obtained at that time, and Asa is there called Asa, Jr., as his name was found on papers written in that manner, there being an older man by the name in Leominster. The ancestry of Tamar Whitcomb[5] will be found in volume first, page 75. "Asa Johnson, of Leominster, was a private in Capt. Joseph Sargent's company, Col. Josiah Whitney's regiment, pay abstract for mileage, dated June 22, 1777; also private in a company commanded by Capt. Joseph Sargent of Princeton, service from May 5, 1777, to July 12, 1777, 67 1/2 days at Rhode Island; travel 91 miles allowed, company drafted from Col. Josiah Whitney's and Col. Stearn's regiments, and marched to serve under Gen. Spencer; also Capt. Nathaniel Carter's company, Col. Job Cushing's (Worcester Co.) regiment; enlisted Sept. 7, 1777; discharged Nov. 29, 1777; service 3 mos. and 4 days at the Northward, including 11 days (220 miles) travel home; also Capt. Timothy Boutell's company, Col. John Rand's regiment; enlisted July 10, 1780, discharged Oct 10, 1780; service 3 mos. 11 days, including 10 days (200 miles) travel home, regiment raised in Worcester Co., to reinforce Continental Army for 3 months." JOSIAH Worcester Griswold[7] (11513), page 208, Vol. II, "Descendants of John White", b. in Buckland, Mass., Jan. 31, 1823; died July 10, 1903, at the old homestead in Buckland, where he had spent his entire life of eighty years. In early life he relinquished his collegiate studies at the earnest solicitations of his father and settled upon the homestead, where he was an enterprising and prosperous farmer. Mr. Griswold was selectman a score or more of years, and served the town in the capacity of town clerk, chairman of school committee, and justice of the peace. He showed marked sagacity in his official administration during the Civil war. He represented the district in the convention held in Boston in 1853 to revise the constitution of the state, and served in the Legislature the following year. His judgment was widely sought and much relied upon. He was one of the founders and a staunch supporter of the Methodist church, and took an active part in all questions of public interest. He was the son of Hon. Joseph and Lovisa (White)[6] Griswold, being the youngest of fourteen children, but one of whom died in childhood. He married first, Jan. 1, 1846, Ann Eliza Davis of Buckland, who died July 22, 1859; he married second, Oct., 19, 1872, Eliza A. Townsley of Springfield, Mass., who survives him with one daughter, Josephine Griswold. Of the four children by his first wife, two are now living, Emerson J. Griswold of Buckland, and Mariette, wife of Rev. Wallace Nutting of Providence, R. I.

LOVICY Dodge[8] (7685), page 647, Vol. I, born in Gouverneur, N. Y., July 15, 1826; she died at the home of her nephew, John C. F. Bilow, at the Bilow homestead in Richville, N. Y., where much of her life had been spent with her sister. She united with the Methodist church in Richville in 1861, and has ever been a faithful and consistent member. She was the seventh child of Lyman and Betsey (White)[7] Dodge.

Mrs. CALISTA (Dodge[8]) Bilow (7682), page 651, Vol. I, born in Richville, N. Y., May 5, 1817; died Oct. 24, 1902, at the residence of her son, John C. F. Bilow, who lives on the family homestead, where she was taken as a bride Dec. 19, 1842, by Michael Bilow, who was born in Winchester, Canada, June 1, 1817. He purchased his farm in Richville in 1841, and there they spent nearly forty-four years, enjoying the labor and blessings as well as the hardships of a pioneer life. Mr. Bilow died Oct. 19, 1886, leaving seven children, Mrs Aurilla Liscum, Mrs. Margaret B. Price, Mrs. Lucelia D. Bresee, M. D. Lafayette Bilow, Mrs. Asenath C. Judge, Mrs. Harriet E. Foster and John C. F. Bilow, who has remained upon the homestead. She united with the Methodist church when thirteen years of age, and was ever a faithful and active member, highly respected by all. She will be greatly missed not only by her children and grandchildren, but also by a large circle of friends.

WHITE FAMILY QUARTERLY.

VOLUME II. JANUARY, 1904. NUMBER I.

"The Lord is good: a stronghold in the day of trouble."

REPORT OF THE EIGHTH REUNION, 1903.

Lancaster, Mass., Sept. 2, 1903; the eigth annual reunion of the "Association of the Descendants of John White" was called to order by the President, John B. White of Kansas City, Mo., at 10.50 A.M. in the Town Hall. Two hours had already been spent in registration, payment of dues, making new, and renewing old acquaintance.

Prayer was offered by Vice President, John F. White of Somerville, Mass.

The records of the last Reunion, and of the special meeting of the Executive Committee, read by the Secretary and approved as read.

Treasurer's Report: George A. White, Franklin Park, Mass., reported in substance as follows: Deficit Aug. 27, 1902; $6.29. Received from all sources during the year $48.75. Disbursments for the year $43.11. Balance Sept. 1, 1903; $5.64. Report accepted as presented. New Business: John F. White of Somerville, presented the following Petition: "To the Cemetery committee of Lancaster:"

We, the "Association of the Descendants of John White of Lancaster," in annual reunion assembled, do hereby petition your honorable body, for permission to set within the limits of the Old Cemetery, a Memorial to our ancestors. Said Memorial, in material, style and inscription, to be subject to the approval of your Committee." Mr. Horace White of Richville, N. Y., moved its adoption, with the amendment, that "some Markers be placed at the Old Homestead." The motion to adopt and the amendment being duly seconded, the President called for the vote upon the amendment, and it was declared carried. Upon the question as amended and the vote to adopt, was unanimous. The committee to carry out the wish of the Association to be appointed by the Chair. The President appointed as that committee, John F. White, Somerville, George A. White, Franklin Park, Charles S. Houghton, Leominster, Mass.

Mr. C. E. Houghton of Baltimore, Md., moved that the names of the Daughters of John White be placed upon the "Markers." The vote was called and the motion declared carried.

Charles S. Houghton of Leominster, moved that a "Committee be appointed, consisting of one from each town or city, to look after the interests of the Association, to urge upon those who are eligible, that they secure membership in the Association, and to aid the secretary in every way possible in her work." Several spoke upon the question, advocating its adoption. The vote was called and the motion declared carried. The President said that in view of the wide acquaintance of the secretary that he would consult with her regarding the personal of the committee. After consultation the Chair appointed: Fanny P. Gates, Leominster, Miss Hattie Burpee, Stirling, Mass., Miss Edith Harrington, Westminster, Mass., John F. White, Somerville, Miss Ethel Wilder, Clinton, Mass., and other names to be added from time to time.

George A. White of Franklin Park, spoke in the interest of the "White Family Quarterly," urging that every member of the "White Family" should be a subscriber, and assist in every way to make the publication a success. Miss Myra L. White of Haverhill, Mass., spoke at some length, giving the reason for the publication of the "Quarterly," how many branches of the family do not appear in their proper place in the "Genealogy" because at the time of the printing of the book she had not discovered them, and that the Quarterly was the channel through which she should continue to give the results of her genealogical research. And appealing to the family far and wide to assist her in this work by subscribing for the Quarterly, as well as the Genealogy.

George A. White moved that "The Quarterly be the official organ of the Association; that the constitution be printed therein, and that all official notices be issued through that channel." Motion declared carried. Voted: The Association take a recess until one P.M. for dinner.

Called to order at 1.30 P.M. President White favored the Association with an able and interesting address upon early historical events, touching upon many things that concerned the family alone and also upon its connection by marriage and inter-marriage with the prominent and influential families of the times. The address was most cordially received.

Mrs. Haley of South Lee, N.H., beautifully rendered a solo, much to the gratification of the hearers.

A paper on the "Rowlandson Garrison House" and its capture by the Indians February 10, 1676; was read by John F. White of Somerville, and favorably received.

Mrs. Haley then read an original poem in which the White lost none of the honors of the past.

Mrs. Weston kindly favored the Association in the reading of an original paper, that added to the pleasure of the occasion.

The President then called upon Mr. Horace White of Richville, for a recitation. And our aged friend, with all the vigor and energy of his youthful days, rendered in the most charming manner possible, "How can we lift them up."

The President announced as the next order of business the election of officers and appointed as a committee on nomination Miss Myra L. White, Haverhill, Mrs. Salem Wilder, Clinton, Mrs. Margaret F. Mathews, Ft. Worth, Texas. While the committee were arranging the list of officers John Wilder Fairbank was called to the front and addressed the Association, much to its interest and gratification.

The committee on nomination reported unamimously for the re-election of the present board. Mr. Horace White moved the adoption of the report, and put the motion, which was carried without dissent, and the following declared elected:

PRESIDENT—John B. White, Kansas City, Mo.
VICE PRES.—George S. Houghton, Reading, Mass.
VICE PRES.—Joseph H. White, Antwerp, N. Y.
VICE PRES.—Lucius A. Warner, Beacon Falls, Ct.
VICE PRES.—Hon. John W. Kimball, Fitchburg, Mass.
VICE PRES.—John F. White, Somerville, Mass.
VICE PRES.—Mrs. Sarah A. Morrison, Tidioute, Pa.
VICE PRES.—Henry R. Smith, Leominster, Mass.
VICE PRES.—Henry D. White, Grand Valley, Pa.
VICE PRES.—Charles H. White, Grandin, Mo.
VICE PRES.—Milo S. Harrington, Westminster, Mass.
TREASURER—George A. White, Franklin Park, Mass.
SECRETARY—Miss Myra L. White, Haverhill, Mass.

President White, in a few well chosen words, expressed his appreciation of the honor bestowed upon him and the confidence that the Association had in him.

The next annual meeting. Several locations were suggested, but an informal vote showed that it was the sense of the meeting that the next reunion should be at "Whalom Park," Fitchburg, Mass.

Voted to adjourn.

REUNION OF THE WHITE FAMILY, 1903.

We, scions of an ancient tree,
  Meet here on old and sacred ground;
Members of that noble family,
  We gather proudly around.

There courses through our veins today
  "Blue blood" of noble dames and sires,

Unstained we trust by world's affray;
God grant not by its many mires.

'Tis said "Blood tells;" if this be true,
'Twere fitly spoken now, I ween—
For manly faces here I view,
And ladies too, of fairer mien.

I, from a branch of Maine's best name,
Greet cousins of the same good stock,
Who lingered nearer to the plane—
Nearer the far famed "Plymouth Rock."

SILAS—of roving mind, we think,
Engaged in war with French, we hear;
Saw the grand scenery as he passed,
And said, "A home I'll build me here."

By the Kennebec he stopped to rest;
The busy waters passed him by;
Each mountain towering above the rest,
Lifted its rugged head on high.

Now Bingham, where he settled down,
Has given the world some noble men;
Today a brilliant, thrifty town,
Is greatly changed, we trust, since then.

He, the first White to "Parlin pond,"
Gave it in sport his family name;
A younger son of "Lennox's Earls"
Was never sorry that he came.

He later married Lydia Wood,
Of good old "Puritan" stock and name,
Her mother was a "White" so good—
And some were known perchance to fame.

They tell us though the years are gone
So much about the "Parlin Pride"
That when the "Parlin Pride" had flown—
The Parlin very soon had died.

Silas of "Revolutionary" fame,
Rears Abel up to man's estate.
Captain in eighteen hundred twelve,
Sought for himself a fitting mate.

To Lydia Goodrich he is wed,
Whose people came—in thirty-two—
A quiet life in Watertown led,
Of English blood so blue.

One daughter of this union
Christened Elizabeth by name,
Married a New Hampshire man,
Kindly and good, of honest fame.

His people came from England
When this, our land was new,
Fought in the Colonial wars,
And Revolution too.

With pardonable pride we trace the lines
On every side to sources best,
And feel a mighty trust is ours
To keep unstained —a name so blest.

Down all these lines of good descent
Has this same old pride run deep,
Pure as when from the spring it went,
And pure on its way shall keep.

Nor generations dare to mar,
Or tarnish this good, unsullied name—
Nor join inferior streams to this;
Remember the fount from whence it came.

When we, who gather here today,
Pass on to future joys in store,
May those who fill our places then
Respect the names we bore.

Mrs. SARA M. HALEY.

ADDRESS BY JOHN F. WHITE, at the "White Reunion" Lancaster, Mass., Sept. 2, 1903.

Mr. President and cousins of varied degree:

On this beautiful day, that represents to us the 250th anniversary of the settlement of our pioneer ancestor in this grand old town, it is meet that we put in the back ground as much as we may, the fact that in this 250 years the family has been scattered to the four winds. That thay have filled with credit to themselves and to their friends, many honorable positions. In the legislative halls; in the Pulpit; on the Bench; at the Bar; in all the lines of Professional and Merchantile life as well as all the minor walks of life, we find the "descendants of John White of Lancaster" in perhaps greater numbers than of any other man that ever lived in this old town.

It is our aim today to go far back in the history of our family, and take up some incident in that history, that we may study in its many bearings with, we trust, some advantage to all.

There are many such incidents which pertain to the history of Lancaster alone. And one of these we have chosen. One which is of interest to all, and possibly of more interest to some, for you may be direct descendants of the participators of that eventful day.

Sixteen hundred and seventy six was a bitter year for Lancaster. Sorrow, desolation, death, and almost annihilation as a town, was the draught the people were forced to drink to its very dregs. The year opened upon them, the darkest they had known in the history of the Plantation. Clouds of uncertainty were low about them. Many were the rumors of the incursions and depredations of the savage Red Men of the forest. Tragic tales were told of death among the settlers from bullet, knife or tomahawk. The Governor and his Councillors at Boston were unaccountably slow in providing adequate protection for the Planter and his family that were scattered up and down these beautiful valleys and over these majestic hills. Fear, in so much as a brave man or woman knows fear, was in every heart. They did not fear to meet the savage in an open contest and a fair fight. But the red man did not fight that way. It was an ambush, a stroke in the back, or a sudden rush at midnight.

It was known that Philip had not only stirred up his own people, but also the Wampangoas and the Nipmucks, and in that feverish condition of brooding over the real or fancied wrongs of the white man, an attack might be expected at any time.

The situation was so serious that the people had alreany built for themselves places of defence that they called Garrison houses. That is, here and there throughout the Plantation would be a house built especially strong, and with varied means of defense; and to which the people in that immediate vicinity would fly for refuge in case of attack from the savage foe.

There were five of these Garrisons in Lancaster, and it is of one of them, the Rowlandson Garrison House, that we will speak today. To describe its location, it is not necessary for me to take your time. For if there is one of you that has not visited it in the past, you certainly have sought out that historic spot today. The wind still sighs and moans through the branches of the "lone Pine Tree" that markes its site, as though mourning for the tragedy of the past. Of its architectural style, there is very little to be learned from the historical page. It is passing strange that there is so little. We are almost persuaded that there is a significance in this very fact. We read of other Garrison Houses and Block Houses and get some idea of their means of defense. But little, very, very little of this. Marvin says: " This Garrison was guarded only on the front (which probably faced south) and the two sides, with no flankers to cover the rear and no port-holes in that direction." Another writer says; "there was one flanker and another in process of erection." And Hubbard the historian says: "The fortification was on the back side of the building but covered up with fire wood." And he also mentions a "leanter." It would seem that this description as given by Hubbard was the more reasonable in view of the after facts.

The morning of Feb. 10, 1676 finds the inhabitants of Lancaster hastily leaving their homes with the few valuables that they could take with them, and seeking refuge in the Garrison Houses, for the alarm of attack had gone forth before the rising of the sun. Most writers agree that there were forty-two persons, old and young in the Minister's garrison that morning, although Mrs. Rowlandson in her book mentions only thirty-seven.

It is not necessary for me to tell you the story of that fearful two hours, of the tremendous anxiety, of the torturing suspense, of the dreadful agony of mind, that is greater than that of the body, to say nothing of the suffering of the wounded and the dying, from the time of the invasion of the garrison by the Indians, until all was over and the heroic endeavors of that little band had become history. Mrs. Rowlandson tells of the bullets that fell like hail, of this one being wounded, then another, and then a third, of that one falling dead, of the building being fired and one going out quenched it, of its being quickly fired again, of the murtherous heathen that struck down every christian that they could reach, and of the final force of the flames that compelled them to choose death by fire or a possible worse than death at the hands of the savages. Of the forty-two that sought shelter in the Minister's garrison, one escaped to tell the tale of defeat, death and capture, fourteen were known to have met death there, twenty were known to have been carried away captive. Of the fate of the other seven—only the Indians could tell.

The "Annals of Lancaster" give these names as those in the Minister's garrison that day:

Killed in the Rowlandson Garrison.
Ensign John Divoll.
Josiah Divoll, son of John, aged 7.
Daniels Gains.
Abraham Joslin, aged 26.
John MacLoud.
Thomas Rowlandson, nephew of the minister, aged 19.
John Kettle, aged 36.
John Kettle, Jr.
Joseph Kettle, son of John, aged 10.
Mrs. Elizabeth Kerley, wife of Lieut. Henry; daughter of John White.
William Kerley, son of Lieut. Henry, aged 17.
Joseph Kerley, do. aged 7.
Mrs. Priscilla, Roper, wife of Ephraim.
Priscilla, child of Ephraim, aged 3.
Carried captive from Rowlandson Garrison.
Mrs. Mary Rowlandson, wife of the minister, daughter of John White, ransomed.

Mary Rowlandson, daughter of the minister, aged 10, escaped.
Sarah Rowlandson, do., aged 6, wounded and died, Feb. 18.

Joseph Rowlandson, son of the minister, aged 13, ransomed.
Mrs. Hannah Divoll, wife of Ensign John, daughter of John White, allowed to come home.

John Divoll, son of Ensign John, aged 12, died captive.
William Divoll, do., aged 4, ransomed.
Hannah Divoll, daughter of Ensign John, aged 9, allowed to come home.

Mrs. Ann Joslin, wife of Abraham, killed in captivity.
Beatrix Joslin, daughter of Abraham, do.
Joseph Joslin, brother of Abraham, aged 16.
Henry Kerley, son of Lieut. Henry, aged 18.
Hannah Kerley, daughter of Lieut. Henry, aged 13.
Mary Kerley, do., aged 10, escaped.
Martha Kerley, daughter of Lieut. Henry, aged 4.
Elizabeth Kerley, age unknown, escaped.
Mrs. Elizabeth Kettle, wife of John, ransomed.
Sarah Kettle, daughter of John, aged 14, escaped.
Jonathan Kettle, son of John, aged 5.
A child Kettle, daughter of John.

Ephraim Roper, alone escaped during the assault.

While these heroic men went to death, and these women and children to captivity, it was only after most desperate resistance. We cannot for a moment think that the men, women and children in that garrison did not make all the defense possible under the conditions that surrounded them. The women of New England, in that day and generation were of heroic mould, (and have ever been). The Hannah Dustins were not confined to Haverhill, but were all through the New England plantations where the question of life, honor, and her children's saftey was concerned. We are pursuaded that the women and even the younger children were no hindrence in the defence of that garrison. Mrs. Rowlandson tells of "the blood that run down to their heels". But it was a hopeless fight. Hopeless from almost the very invasion of the garrison. Hopeless! Why? Because these men were less brave? Because these women were less heroic? Because these children were more fearful? No. But rather because they did not have a fighting chance. Have you thought that no other garrison in Lancaster was captured? Have you thought that of the 55 that were killed or captured in Lancaster that dreadful day, 41 of them met their fate at the Rowlandson garrison? It is true that the garrison of Cyprian Stevens received help from Marlboro, but that does not account for the fact that the others repelled the foe. Is not the reason embodied in the conditions that prevented a successfnl defense? We see on history's page that Joseph Rowlandson made ample provision to protect his family from the severity of the winter's cold. But that same history fails altogether to give us a reason why the fire-wood should be piled up over the fortifications, as Hubbard says it was. We have not a satisfactory reason to offer why the defenses of the Rowlandson garrison were so meagre. It is true that this was in the midst of the winter, at the coldest of New England's cold winter, and probably with quite a body of snow upon the ground, as Mrs. Rowlandson makes several allusions to the snow in her "removes." But this did not warrant any lack of vigilance on the part of the settlers, for they knew full well of the uneasiness that prevailed among the Red Men to the west of them; and that the families of the natives that lived in their very midst could not be trusted as they had been heretofore for it was believed that they were all under the domination and control of Philip, and had been for some time. In the previous August there had been an attack from the savages, and eight of the Lancaster people had fallen in that attack. Following this there was a comparative quiet for a time. But the towns people realized that it was only " the calm before the storm," else why were Mr. Rowlandson and Lieut. Kerley absent at that very time trying to impress upon the Colonial authorities at Boston, the pressing need of better protection for Lancaster. Had Mr. Rowlandson and Lieut. Kerley been in the garrison that fatal morn it would have made no difference beyond the fact that two more good men would have gone to death.

There is no doubt but that Joseph Rowlandson was a good preacher and an excellent pastor; and that in all matters pertaining to a spiritual warfare that he was very successful in all of his labors. But in a temporal warfare where the weapons used were the rifle, the knife, the tomahawk and the firebrand, and it was necessary to defend against them, some how he did not measure up to the needs of the hour.

Would Capt. John White, the noted Indian fighter, who figured so conspicuously in Lancaster's history in the next generation, and understood so thoroughly what was needed for defense against the treacherous savage, think you that he would have permitted great piles of fire wood to have covered the fortifications of his garrison? No. He appreciated all too keenly the necessity of instant readiness to meet the savage foe. It was true that Mr. Rowlandson made excellent provision for his family, but that same provision was a contributing factor to the loss of all that he possessed.

We can readily understand, though there may be a few among us who have an actual knowledge of what war is, that the very location of the Rowlandson garrison did not make it readily defensible. And the wily foe was quick to see the weak points, both in structure and defense, and as quick to act. It was not long after the invasion of the garrison that the Indians discovered that the defense on the back side of the building was very weak or none at all, and that continued attack upon that side failed to show defense. What is more natural than for us to conclude that, continuing the attack upon the three sides of the building where they were meeting a vigorous defense, such a defense as to make it impracticable to rush the building, batter down the doors, and so overcome by sheer force of numbers, that by fire alone could they drive them forth.

They had learned that it was death to the redskin that got within reach of the guns of the garrison, for the bodies of many of their number were fast growing cold on the snow covered ground. They also knew that what they would do they must do quickly, for we cannot presume that they were ignorant of the rapid approach of Capt. Wadsworth and his intrepid force of forty determined men. They also knew those forty guns would make fearful havoc in their ranks, the moment that they could get within gun shot.

So the chief determined to deal a crushing blow if possible.

Quickly calling by his swift runners, reinforcements from the attacking force on the other garrisons, he bends all his energies to fire the building and so drive out the gallant defenders that he had failed to dislodge in any other way. And here was where Joseph Rowlandson's planning or lack of planning, was fatal to his own. Those great piles of fire wood that were piled so high that they covered all the port holes on that side of the building, furnished the enemy with just the munitions of war they needed.

The "leanter" mentioned by Hubbard, must have fired even more readily than the building itself or the firewood piled against it. Quickly that little band of defenders realized that their greatest danger was not from the bullets of the foe. The crackling of the flames as they rapidly ate into the frail "leanter" and the piles of dry firewood, was heard even above the fearful din of attack at the right and left and in front of them. Those stout hearts quailed. For an instant the ruddy cheeks paled. But the reaction followed even faster, and that brave man, that history has failed entirely to identify, rushed forth from the garrison, and rapidly dashed the blazing brands hither and thither until the building was free from danger, and then quickly regained his place within the walls. How much we would like to know that man's name. But there is no possible way for identification. The name is lost, but the action itself stands out upon the annals of time as grandly heroic as that of any of the heroes of the past. Even the savage, crazed as he was for the white man's blood, was amazed and bewildered at such a display of heroism, and for the moment not a shot was fired. But this respite from immediate danger was brief. Quickly the red man was the savage again, and the fire was crackling, and flashing, and blazing, fiercer than it had before. Breaking through wall and roof; the smoke was stifling and the heat was intense. What a fearful dilemma for those brave women. All had been done that could be done. Every means of defense had been exhausted. On the one side, the garrison house that had sheltered them, a seething furnace; on the other—a fate that might be more dreadful than fire. Under these awful circumstances they must choose, and choose they did. Would you have the story in all its heart rending, blood curdling and soul harrowing detail? Then read Mrs. Rowlandson's book that for more than two hundred years has kept hold upon popular favor, and the more than a score of editions testify the appreciation of its eloquence and pathos.

It is with grateful hearts that we gather from history's page that Mrs. Rowlandson and some of the other women who were captured that day were most wonderfully preserved from the fate that so often was brutally dealt to the female captive by the red-skin foe.

We have given you the names of those who were restored to their friends by ransom and of those who perished in captivity, as well as those of whom nothing is known beyond the fact that they were taken away captive,—our imagination must supply the rest.

Are we grateful enough to the "Giver of all good" that our lot in life is cast in such pleasant places?

20. Cerdic or Cherdic. In 494–5, a band of Saxon adventurers led by alderman Cerdic, landed in Southampton Water, west of the realm of Aella (494) and after a hard fight with the Britons, won the valleys of the Itchen and the Test with the old Roman town of Venta (Winchester). In 519, Cedric took the title of king like his neighbors of Kent and Sussex and his realm became known as the land of the Saxons (Wessex). Cerdic had wife Wihtgar.

21. Cynric or Kenric of Chenric, only son of Wihtgar, wife of Cerdic, 534-560. Cerdic, associating his son Cynric in the dignity, became the King of the territory which he gained, and the house of Cerdic finally became the royal house of all the island.

31. Ecgbert or Echberht, first king of all England; m. Redburga, dau. of Bristric, King of West Saxon (8), 3rd lineage. It is said that in the Saxon annals that he descended from Woden, the root of the Saxon families, and by his conquest which he made in Britain he may be considered as one of the first founders of the English monarchy; the kings of England descended from him in the male line to the illustrious Edward the Confessor, and in the female line to the illustrious Queen Victoria, who sat upon the throne of England sixty-four years.

32. Ethelwulf, King of England, m. Osburga, dau. of Oslac, the royal cup-bearer; he was of Jutish descent from Whitgar, King of Wight, one of the two brothers to whom King Cerdic (their uncle) gave the Isle of Wight.

DANIEL Harrington[7] (5598), Vol. I, page 480, died at his home in Westminster, Mass., May 3, 1903. He was born in Westminster, Jan. 26, 1813; married July 1834, Nancy,[6] daughter of Dea. James and Thankful (Patch) White[5] (612), born in Westminster, Aug. 18, 1815; she died in Westminster, Dec. 3, 1893. Mr. Harrington was a farmer in South Westminster, where he had the respect and esteem of all. A small family gathering was held at his home on his ninetieth birthday and he enjoyed it very much, for his mind was wonderfully clear for a man of his years and remained so until his last sickness which was very brief. He was always interested in all that concerned each member of the family and the children and grandchildren will not forget the words of counsel and encouragement received from him in the many years he was spared to them, although they will miss his cheery word and pleasant smile.

Mrs. Melinda (Hutt[9]) Carter (17824), Vol. II, page 717, died at her home in Leominster, Mass., Sept. 27, 1903. She was born at Chipman's Brook, Nova Scotia, Apr. 26, 1857; married in Fitchburg, Mass., July 1, 1880, Rufus B., son of Luke Wheelock and Abigail F. (Priest) Carter, born in Leominster, Feb. 10, 1847; they lived in Leominster, where he died Nov. 26, 1901, leaving five children. Death has again entered that home and taken from those dear children the loving care and counsel of a devoted mother, and though they have the heartfelt sympathy of all in their deep bereavement, yet there is no one but the Father of the fatherless who can comfort and support them in this trying hour. May they learn to look to him for the help they so much need.

Mrs. ADA J. (Denig) White, wife of William F. White[8] (9925), Vol. II, page 86, of Chicago, Ill., died in Boston, Mass., buriel at Rosehill Cemetery, Chicago, Sept. 24, 1903.

FREDERICK L. White[8] (4337), Vol. I. page 380, died in Bethlehem, N. H., July 30, 1903, aged 55 years. He was born in Boston, Mass., April 11, 1848; went when a young man with his father to Littleton, N. H., where they entered into business together. In 1868 they opened a branch store in Bethlehem, and soon after his father moved there, and the store has been continued ever since under the firm name of C. G. White & Son. His father died in Bethlehem Feb. 4, 1885, and Mr. White besides continuing the large department store, was the owner of three other stores, including a fine Casino, the White Mountain souvenir store, and the club house at the golf links. Mr. White was for years trustee and a leading member of the Methodist church, also president of the Bethlehem Golf Association, and of the Bethlehem board of trade. He was a member of the Golden Cross commandary at Lancaster, N. H. and of the Odd Fellow's lodge in Boston.

He married Sept. 18, 1871, Lizzie K., dau. of Henry Bursley of Boston, who survives him; they had one daughter, Gertrude L., born in Boston Dec. 28, 1872; she died in Bethlehem, Jan. 13, 1889.

Mr. White was a man of the highest character and of genial nature which had won him thousands of friends among the innumerable summer visitors that have thronged Bethlehem for the last quarter of a century. His sudden death cast a gloom over the entire community, visitors uniting with his relatives and town's people in mourning his loss. Always in the front in all movements for improvement, few men had done more than Mr. White for the upbuilding of the town, or will be more truly mourned.

WHITING GATES

WHITE FAMILY QUARTERLY.

VOLUME II. APRIL, 1904. NUMBER II.

"The Lord is good: a stronghold in the day of trouble."

WHITING GATES

WHITING Gates[8] (21940), Vol. III; died at his home in Leominster, Mass., Feb. 29, 1904. He was born in Leominster, Feb. 27, 1815, son of Jonas and Martha (Divoll) Gates, and great grandson of Mary Sawyer[5] (743), p. 78, and John Divoll[5] (859), p. 85, Vol. I, "Descendants of John White." He married Jan. 5, 1842, Lucy Ann, daughter of Salmon and Abigail (Carter) Richardson, born in Leominster, Jan. 1, 1816; she died Oct. 13, 1879.

Mr. Gates when nineteen years old attended school in Wayland, Mass., and later in Newton, Mass., where he worked his way with two other boys. "If there came a stormy Saturday school was in session, and the holiday then came on some pleasant week day when the boys would be able to do some work." He also attended Uncle Tom Frye's Quaker school two winters. He taught school in Leominster and Lunenburg; then went to Worcester, Mass., where he was clerk and deputy sheriff until 1842, when he returned to Leominster, and settled, with his widowed mother, on the farm since known as the "Whiting Gates farm." On the estate was a saw and grist-mill, which he managed in connection with the farm, he was also the first to introduce the manufacture of buttons, the first being made in a room fitted up in his mill. When nearly seventy-five years of age, Mr. Gates left the farm and built the house where he afterward resided.

Mr. Gates was the oldest native born member of the Unitarian parish, and yet no one was more interested in the building of the new church.

Mr. Gates never grew old except in years, but was in sympathy with the youngest, and ever ready to add to their enjoyment. His pleasant smile and kind words will be sadly missed at the reunions of our association, in which he has ever shown so deep an interest. He was one of the oldest descendants of John White of Lancaster, Mass., and we also find among his ancestors the following names of the first settlers of Lancaster and Leominster—John Prescott, Thomas Sawyer, John Whitcomb, Thomas Wilder, John Divoll, Gamaliel Beaman, John Houghton, Samuel Carter, John Moore, Jacob Farrar, John Smith, Edward Phelps, Reubin Gates and Hooker Osgood.

Mr. Gates leaves besides a large circle of friends, six children to mourn his loss, Jonas W. Gates of Leominster, Abbie E. Gates, who had cared for her father, Susan R. Gates of Hingham, Mass., Mrs. Martha E. Edwards, Leominster, Hattie L. P. and Fannie P. Gates who also shared their father's home.

GILBERT Silas Morton, husband of Helen Lilley[8] (10431), p. 131, Vol. II, died at his home in Shenandoah, Iowa, April 10, 1902; born near Cleveland, Ohio, Sept. 9, 1846, son of Daniel and Sarah (Bryant) Morton. They were married in Chillicothe, Kan , where she was teaching, Nov. 27, 1873. He lived for a short time in Kewanee, Ill., then settled in Iowa where he was a prosperous farmer; but later retiring, settled in Shenandoah.

Mr. Morton was one of the wealthiest men in the community in which he lived, and had always been a hard worker. He was honest in all his dealings and kind to those who needed his help, his tenants have naught but good words to say of him. As evidence of his kindness of heart, during the year of drought, when his tenants were not able to make any money on his farms and raised very little grain, he charged them only a very small rent, thus dividing with them the hardships which they were called to endure.

Although Mr. Morton will be sadly missed among his large circle of friends and acquaintances yet it is in his home the loss will be most keenly felt. He leaves besides his wife one daughter Stella, wife of Dr. H. H. Richardson of Shenandoah.

Miss MARY Gill Clark[7] (12748), p. 294, Vol. II, died at her home in North Charlestown, N. H., Feb 6, 1904, after a short illness, aged 91 years. Miss Clark was born in Princeton, Mass., Oct. 20, 1812, daughter of Aaron and Elizabeth (Brooks[6]) Clark. She lived in the house with her brother Aaron, Jr., who died Dec. 25, 1900, and his widow and children will greatly miss "Aunt Mary's" loving companionship; for she was one who through her long life ever had a tender care for others, and even in her last sickness did not forget to inquire many times in a day for her sister-in-law who was ill at the time.

Dea. BENJAMIN Franklin Cram[8] (4284), p. 374, Vol. I, died at his home in Kingston, N. H., Jan. 1, 1904. wanting but two days of 83 years. Dea. Cram was born in Hampton Falls, N.H., Jan. 3, 1821, son of Benjamin and Rebecca Fletcher (White[7]) Cram. He married Nov. 4, 1846, Lizzie S , daughter of Caleb, Jr. and Sally (Tuck) Smith, born in Brentwood, N.H., Dec. 9, 1824.

Dea. Cram was a farmer in Hampton Falls for several years but later moved to Kingston where he was deacon and treasurer in the Congregational church for more than twenty-five years, he was collector of taxes in the town eleven years and held other offices in town and church.

His loss will be deeply felt in the community, for he truly can be called "The noblest work of God," an honest man. He leaves besides his wife, five children to mourn his loss, for although they had been married more than 57 years, his death was the first to break the family circle. His children are—Julia L., wife of Woodbury Collins of Danville, N.H., F. Herbert Cram of New Haven, Conn., Sarah E., wife of George E. Bailey, of Kingston, Milan C. Cram of Haverhill, Mass , and Charlotte L. Cram living at the homestead with her mother.

Mrs. ABBIE Frances (Spalding) White, wife of Charles Hodsdon White[8] (4287), p. 375, Vol. I, died at her home in Wilton, N. H., Jan. 3, 1904; born in Wilton, Aug. 28, 1834, daughter of Charles and Lydia Jones (Burns) Spalding. They were married Nov. 27, 1856, and lived for a short time in Milford, N.H., and then settled in Wilton, where her kindly acts and amiable disposition has endeared her to a large circle of friends. Yet it is in her home that her loving care and tenderness will be most sadly missed, for she was indeed a devoted wife and mother.

Mrs. White left, besides her husband, four children—Mrs. Emma L. wife of Willard N. Griffin of Gloucester, Mass., Carrol S. White of Manchester, N. H., Mrs. Jennie F. widow of Las Casas Barnes of Wilton, who is now living with her father, and Charles W. White of Nashua, N.H., as well as eight grand children who will miss the willing hands of dear grandma. She also left one brother Charles C. Spalding and two sisters Mrs. Lucy K. wife of Gardner Blanchard and Mrs. Mary R. widow of Asa Blanchard all living in Wilton.

Mrs. CHARLOTTE Amelia (Burt[7]) West (14743), p. 460, Vol. II, died in Jackson, Mich., Nov. 13, 1902; born in Westmoreland, N.H., Jan. 20, 1829, daughter of Willard and Martha (Wood[6]) Burt; she married Feb. 24, 1855, John A. West of Worcester, Mass., who died Sept. 16, 1863, in Worcester, where she remained a few years and then settled in Jackson, among her cousins who were her nearest living relatives. She was buried in "Rural Cemetery" Worcester, beside her husband.

Mrs. HANNAH A. (Houseman) Wood, wife of George Wood[7] (14716), p. 452, Vol. II, died in Sandstone, Mich., May 19, 1903; born in Orleans Co., N.Y., Sept. 11, 1825, daughter of Jacob and Polly (Loudon) Houseman. Her maternal ancestors were of Holland and her paternal grandfather George Houseman, emigrated to America when but nineteen years old, in time to serve in the Revolutionary war.

She married Dec. 28, 1852, George Wood,[7] who survives her, also two children—Jotham J. Wood and Mrs. Ella S. wife of Fred M. Dwelley of Jackson, Mich.

Miss ANNIE Laura Stearns9, p. 620, Vol. II, daughter of Edmund H. and Laura Wilder (Rugg) Stearns born in Leominster, Mass., Nov. 23, 1867; died in Worcester, Mass., Mar. 2, 1904.

IRA Lucian White[7] (10370), p. 121, Vol. II, died in Milwaukee, Wis. Apr. 2, 1904. Mr. White was born in West Brome, Province of Quebec, May 4, 1837, son of William F. and Charlotte Smith (Perrigo) White. His parents were both born in the state of Vermont, but lived for a short time in Quebec, moving to Galena, Ill., very soon after the birth of his son and later to Viroqua, Wis., where he began his life work with his father, carrying the United States mail. After coming of age the gold craze carried him alone to California, where in 1860, he was riding a pony express every day. A year later he was driving a coach and six around mountain defiles, with revolvers in his pockets and bandits around him. He returned to Green Bay, Wis., where he continued as mail carrier several years, then settled in Milwaukee and for twelve years he carried all the mail between the post office, the sub-stations and the depots in Milwaukee, his sons taking his contract in the summer of 1903.

Mr. White married June 26, 1871, Adelaide Stevens born in Knox, Me., Mar. 21, 1848. Mrs. White was of Oshkosh, Wis., at time of her marriage, a sister of E. E. Stevens, a former mayor. Besides his wife, he leaves three children, William O., Arthur H. and Cora B. also four sisters, Mrs. Ellen M. Burrell of Hutchinson, Kan., Mrs. Mary A. Mead, Mondovi, Wash.; Mrs. Almeria C. Nichols, Spearville, Kas.; and Mrs. Lucia M. White, his twin sister who also lives in Hutchinson.

WHITE FAMILY QUARTERLY.

It was voted at the Reunion, held in Lancaster, Mass., September 2, 1903, that "The Quarterly be the official organ of the Association; that the constitution be printed therein, and that all official notices be issued through that channel."

Now, this is not the only object of the Quarterly, for it is needed very much, in which to print the branches which could not be found when the first and second volumes were printed, but which rightly belonged in them ; and for which there is not room in the third volume yet in press. Also to keep up the current records of the the family. In the Quarterly for 1903, were printed, besides corrections and short additions, ancestors and descendants of Jonathan and Sarah (Dodge,[5] 303, p. 50, Vol. I) Peirce, 261 members in regular line. John P. Howe[7] (2295, p. 193. Vol. I), 61 descendants. Ancestry of Jonathan Johnson, who married Mary Kerley[8] (24, p. 27, Vol. I), with 365 of their descendants. Asa Johnson's ancestry and 172 descendants.

In the second volume 1904, is being printed the descendants of Maj. Josiah Carter, who married Tabitha, dau. of James Howe (128, p. 60, Vol. I (as well as his ancestry). Also the Royal Ancestry of John Prescott from whom are descended all of the Sawyers and many of the Whites, Wilders, Fairbanks and Whitcombs of Lancaster.

Through the two volumes are English Records copied by Rev. John Holding of Stotfold, Baldock, Herts, Eng., for Mr. J. B. White.

FAMILY REUNION.

The reunion of The Descendants of John White of Wenham and Lancaster, Mass., will meet at Whalom Park, Fitchburg, Mass., Wednesday, Aug. 24, 1904.

At ten o'clock the members of the family will assemble, names will be registered and an hour spent in personal greeting. At eleven the meeting will be open for business, followed by the family dinner at 12:30. Those living near will make it a basket picnic, but those from a distance, or any who wish, can have dinner at the pavilion, by notifying the secretary on or before August 17, that the arrangements may be perfected.

The afternoon will be spent in listening to literary exercises, and making new and renewing old acquaintances. Those wishing for the Association badge before the meeting can have it by sending $1.00, admission fee, with their name, to the secretary. Members wishing to pay their annual dues before the reunion can send the same to the secretary or treasurer.

Come one, come all, and let us make this a meeting long to be remembered

KING ALFRED THE GREAT.

WHITE FAMILY QUARTERLY.

VOLUME II. JULY, 1904. NUMBER III.

"The Lord is good: a stronghold in the day of trouble."

ROYAL ANCESTRY OF JOHN PRESCOTT,

Founder of Lancaster, Mass.

FIRST LINEAGE.

33. King Alfred the Great, born in Wantage, Berkshire, England, 849; m. in 869, Alswitha, dau. of Ethelred, a Mercian earlderman. He was crowned in Winchester in 871. He has left us his own conception of what a king should be. "Power is never a good, unless he be good that has it; so it is the good of the man, not of the power. If power be goodness, therefore it is that no man by his dominion can come to the virtues and to merit; but by his virtues and merit he comes to dominion and thus no man is better for his power; but if he be good, it is from his virtues that he is good. From his virtues he becomes worthy of power, if he be worthy of it. . . . . By wisdom you may come to power, though you should not desire the power. You need not be solicitous about power, nor strive after it. If you be wise and good, it will follow you, though you should not wish it."

"Ah! Wise One, thou knowest that greed and the possession of this earthly power never were pleasing to me, nor did I ever greatly desire this earthly kingdom—save that I desired tools and materials to do the work that it was commanded me to do. This was that I might guide and wield wisely the authority committed to me. Why! thou knowest that no man may understand any craft or wield any power, unless he have tools and materials. Every craft has its proper tools. But the tools that a king needs to rule are these; to have his land fully peopled; to have priest-men, and soldiermen, and workmen. Yea thou knowest that without these tools no king can put forth his capacity to rule. . . It was for this I desired materials to govern with, that my ability to rule might not be forgotten and hidden away. For every faculty and authority is apt to grow obsolete and ignored, if it be without wisdom; and that which is done in unwisdom can never be reckoned as skill. This will I say—that I have sought to live worthily the while I lived, and after my life to leave to the men that come after me a remembering of me in good works."

Alfred fortified London 886, and carried on a defensive war with the Danes 894-897, which ended in the withdrawal of the invaders, and in which, by the aid of ships of improved model, the English for the first time gained a decided naval advantage over the vikings. His success against the Danes was due largely to his reform of the national fyrd or militia, by which half the force of each shire was always ready for military service. His administration was also marked by judicial and educational reform. He compiled a code of laws, rebuilt the schools and monasteries, and invited scholars to his court. He was himself a man of learning and translated into Saxon the "Ecclesiastical History" of the Venerable Bede, the "Epitome of the Universal History" of Paulus Orosius, and the "Consolations of Philosophy" by Boethius, and corrected a translation of the "Dialogues" of Gregory the Great. The popular accounts of his life abound in legends which are devoid of historical foundation. He died Oct. 28, 1901.

34. Ethelfleda, oldest daughter of King Alfred the Great, married Ethelred, Earl of Mercia, who was sub-king of Mercia, he died in 912. An innovation, probably due to the energy, wisdom, and courage which she was known to possess, left her the holder of an earldorman's authority, and she takes a place in history as "The Lady of Mercia." She ruled her land in perfect accord with her brother, and furthered his plans by the erection of fortresses at various points. The city of Chester, which had been left desolate for three hundred years, became again a place of strength to guard the north-west. Bridgenorth, Stamford, Tamworth, Warwick, Hertford, Witham (in Essex), and other points were fortified with works of stone; and not only were Danish risings quelled, but the king and his sister made steady encroachments on the dominion of the Danelagh. In 917 the Lady took Derby, and in 918 she forced the garrison of Leicester to surrender. In 920 her death came at Tamworth.

35. Elswiha, married Godwin, a nobleman of Wessex.

36. Leofwine, Earl of Leicester; m.——— and in 1017 became Earl of Mercia; he died between 1024 and 1032 and his son Leofric succeeded him as Earl of Mercia.

37. Leofric, in 1032 he succeeded his father in the earldom of Mercia, which was at that time of less extent than the ancient kingdom, for portions had been cut off to form inferior earldoms, and though Leofric's superiority was no doubt recognized by other earls, his immediate rule probably did not for many years after he had received his father's earldom extend beyond Cheshire, Staffordshire, Shropshire and the North Welsh border.

In 1051 Leofric received a summons from the king to come to his help; for Godwine and his sons had taken up arms. He marched with a small force to Gloucester, where Edward was, but when he and the other earls who were on the king's side saw how matters stood, they sent messengers through their earldoms to raise all their forces. War seemed imminent, when Leofric interposed, declaring that it would be folly for Englishmen to fight with one another, and so lay their land open to the attack of a foreign enemy; for the chiefest men of the country were in the two armies. He advised, therefore, that both sides should give hostages and should keep the peace, and the quarrel should be decided at a future meeting of the witan; his advice was followed. He died in Bromley, Staffordshire, Aug. 31, 1057.

38. Alfgar, married Alfgifu, he died in 1062?

39. Lucia, m. Ivo de Talbois, son of Fulke, Count of Anjou and brother to Geoffrey, Count of Anjou and first Baron of Kendel, Westmoreland.

40. Eldred, 2nd Baron of Kendel, m. Edgitha.

41. Ketel, (or Chete) 3rd Baron of Kendel m.———.
42. Gilbert, 4th Baron of Kendel m.———.

43. Warin de Lancaster (2nd son of above) living in 1176, held land in Lancashire.

44. Henry de Lancaster (2nd son of above) took the name of Lea from his estate of Lea on the river Ribble, was living in 1208 and designated as Governor of Lancaster. In 1208, King John of England executed a deed in confirmation of one of his father, King Henry II, to Warin de Lancaster, conveying to said Warin, lands in Counties Chester and Lea in exchange for the township of "Liverpul" and lands of Litherland.

Deed of King John in 1208, from Vol. 1-3, Historic Society of Lancashire and Cheshire.

(See 44.)

"John by the grace of God & ——— Know ye that we have granted and by our present charter have confirmed to Henry Fitz Warin of Lancaster the lands which King Henry my father gave to Warine his father, for his service, to wit: Ravensmolles, Amondesdale, and the French Lea, which we have given him in exchange for Liverpul and the Up Litherlands; which lands the aforesaid Henry my father had given to the aforesaid Warine his father and which the said Henry hath remitted to us and our heirs. To be holden to him and his heirs on the payment of 20/ yearly at the feast of St. Michael for all service and exaction, saving to us and to our heirs the wardship and marriages of the heirs of said Henry in manner as our ancestors used to have the same, when Warine the father of said Henry did their service of a falconer to our ancestors. Wherefore the said Henry and his heirs after him may hold the aforesaid lands of all their appurtenances of us, and our heirs, by the aforesaid service, in woods and plain, in ways and paths, in meadows and feedings, in moor and marshes, in waters and mills [rills?], in pools and well, and in peace and quietly and freely, peaceably and honorably, fully and entirely, in all places and things, with all liberties and customs to the aforesaid lands pertaining as is aforesaid.

Rev. BYRON Alden[6] (16081), vol. II, p. 563, died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Martha Wood, in Streator, Ill., May 2, 1904. "Father" Alden was born in Hinesburg, Vt., Nov. 5, 1806, son of Rufus and Sally (White[5]) Alden. Although he had passed his ninety-seventh birthday, he never lost his interest in things around him and was out upon the street less than a week before he was called home. On Sunday morning he heard the church bells ring and saw the bright May sunshine streaming into his room. "What a glorious day for the Sabbath!" he said. He wanted to get up to see the people go to church, but that joy was denied him. As the shadows began to gather with the "sunset and the evening star," he murmured: "My beautiful Sabbath is passing into eternity and I am going with it." He went out before the dawn broke again.

His boyhood days were spent in Hinesburg, and there, on Oct. 29, 1827, he married Sarah Ann, dau. of Joel Peck, b. in Hinesburg, Jan. 15, 1805. Together they lived for fifty-four years, Mrs. Alden dying February 1, 1881, just five weeks after they settled in Streator. On each anniversary of her death for twenty-one years he wrote her a poem of remembrance and love. When a boy he became a member of the Methodist church and began to prepare himself for its ministry. He was licensed to preach in Nicholville, N. Y., admitted to trial in 1838, and ordained a minister in 1841, by Bishop Waugh of the Methodist church. His first assignment was the Hopkinton Charge, where he served three years with success. For thirty years he was a circuit rider and later resident preacher in northern New York, bringing spiritual comfort and cheer to thousands. In 1870-1 he moved from New York State to Illinois, settling in Woodstock, where for ten years he preached for the united Methodist and Presbyterian congregation at Greenwood, near Woodstock, then settled in Streator in 1881, where he supplied successively for one year each the churches at Gardner and Verona. Since then he had no regular charge, but he preached frequently for pastors in the neighborhood.

On his ninetieth birthday Mr. Alden gave a concert of song in the Streator Methodist church, the selections being mainly of his own composition, both words and music. In the earlier years of his ministry he possessed a rich tenor voice, which materially aided him in his evangelistic work.

Upon the date of President McKinley's burial he was one of the orators assigned to deliver a patriotic address to the school pupils.

At the meeting of the Central Illinois conference in 1902 he preached the conference sermon, speaking forty-five minutes without faltering of voice and at the finish received many compliments for his eloquence. "Father" Alden's last public appearance in the pulpit in Streator was in September, 1904, just following the annual conference which transferred their pastor, Rev. Mr. Bell, to Galesburg. He was assigned to speak upon the work of the church and what had been accomplished in the seven years of Rev. Mr. Bell's administration there, and he was as clear, consecutive and forceful in thought as any of the younger ministers who spoke upon that occasion.

His first presidential vote was for "Tippecanoe" Harrison in 1840, and he never missed the opportunity to cast a ballot for the republican nominee—always a speaker and a worker for that party.

"Father" Alden was the oldest of five children, all of whom passed the age of eighty years, except his youngest brother, Rev. Justin Thomas Alden, who died in Camden, N. Y., Aug. 29, 1864, aged forty-three. Of Rev. Mr. Alden's five children all have passed away except two daughters, Mrs. Mary F. Becker of Sacramento, Cal., and his youngest daughter, Mrs. Martha Wood, at whose home he has been cheered and cared for since the death of his wife.

RICHARD T. Giffin[3] (9927), vol. II, p. 87, died in Minneapolis, Minn., May 18, 1894. Mr. Giffin was born in Sutton, Vt., Mar. 13, 1828; married (1) Jan. 25, 1855, Betsey Tinker, born May 19, 1835; she died and he married (2) Jane Wanbold, born July 15, 1848. He removed with his father from Sutton, to Marlow, N. H., where he settled on a farm. In 1866 he went west and was for a time engaged in farming in Lake Park, Minn., and later in Minneapolis.

HENRY Giffin[8] (9929), vol. II, p. 87, died at his home in Keene, N. H., April 27, 1904. He was born in Sutton, Vt., October 29, 1832, son of David and Mary (White[7]) Giffin; moved with his parents to Marlow, N.H. when eighteen years of age; he was employed on a farm in Marlow and vicinity, himself owning and carrying on a farm there for a time. He married, February 24, 1858, Harriet S. Tinker, born in Lempster, N. H., April 18, 1839. Mr. Giffin remained on his farm until 1866, when he moved into the village, where he drove one of the late George Burnap's six and eight horse teams, which used to freight between Marlow and Keene before the days of railroads, and during that time learned much about work horses, of which he was a good judge. In 1873 Mr. Giffin moved to Keene, and in 1879 engaged in the coal business, which he has since carried on, becoming an extensive dealer, and his teams have for a long time been the finest and best equipped in the city

But, best of all, Mr. Giffin was the noblest work of God, an honest man, with a large heart and a generous disposition, and his kind acts will ever keep his memory fresh with those who knew him best. He has always shown a deep interest in the reunions, and was one of the first to respond to an invitation of a family gathering.

But it is in his family where he will be most keenly missed, by her who has walked by his side for forty-six years and his only son, George H., who was so closely connected with him in the business as well as home life, also his two little grandsons will sadly miss their play with grandpapa, for they were his delight as failing health confined him to the house; besides his wife, son and family, he leaves a niece, Miss Hattie Whittemore, who has long been in his family, a brother, Mr. Charles Giffin of Keene, and two sisters, Mrs. George S. Goddard of Hinsdale, N. H., and Mrs. Menzies Hartshorn of Tully, Mass.

Isaac G. Peaslee, husband of Louisa W. Little-Ames[8] (9949), vol. II, p. 90, died in Peterboro, N. H., April 27, 1904. He will be sadly missed by his invalid wife.

Mrs HATTIE Stuart (Hawley) White, widow of Dr. John L. White[7] (13637), vol. II, p. 362, died in Bloomington, Ill., Apr. 16, 1904. She was born in Onondaga, N. Y., Dec. 8, 1831, married to Dr. White Feb. 10, 1857, who died May 14, 1902. Dr. White was the oldest son of Dr. John White of Westminster, Mass., and Watertown, N. Y., and this family is fast passing away; Josiah Howe White died in Alameda, Cal., Sept. 23, 1897; Charles Hudson White of Ithaca, N. Y., died from injuries received in a railroad accident in Patterson, N. J., Dec. 2, 1899; and Dr. James I. Scollard, husband of their sister, Ellen Richards White, died at their home in Clinton, N. Y., Feb. 20, 1903.

LIZZIE L. Marble[8] (13490), vol. II, p. 349, died in Leominster, Mass., Mar. 10, 1904; she was born in Ashburnham, Mass., Jan. 4, 1865. Miss Marble leaves a widowed mother to whom her life had been devoted; besides a brother, Frank L. Marble of Leominster, and a sister, Mrs. Susie E. Knight of Milford, Mass.

MRS. SARAH White Giffin (9928), vol. II, p. 87, wife of Silas Stone, died in Marlow, N. H., Jan. 10, 1904. Mrs. Stone was born in Sutton, Vt., Dec. 25, 1830; moved with her parents to Marlow, where she married, June 6, 1852, Silas, son of John and Joanna (Gee) Stone, born in Marlow, Jan. 11, 1830. (John Stone was son of Josiah and Sally (Meade) Stone, born in Harvard, Mass., July 12, 1797, and grandson of James and Deborah Stone of Lancaster and Harvard.) Mr. and Mrs. Silas Stone lived on the farm where Mr. Stone was born until a few years since, when they moved to the village of Marlow, where he is now left alone in his old age. Mrs. Stone leaves, besides her husband, two daughters, Josephine J., wife of Joseph Crummett of Haverhill, Mass., and Della A., wife of Arthur M. Russell of Marlow; also three grandchildren, Grace M. Crummett of Haverhill, Carl S. Crummett of Brown University class of 1907, and Hiram Stone Russell, born in Marlow, Sept. 5, 1903.

MRS. KEZIAH (HAMLIN) BROOKS

WHITE FAMILY QUARTERLY.

VOLUME II. OCTOBER, 1904. NUMBER IV.

"The Lord is good: a stronghold in the day of trouble."

KEZIAH HAMLIN BROOKS, 1804-1904.

WRITTEN BY HERBERT BROOKS, COLUMBUS, OHIO.

In looking back a century, knowing that at the beginning of it, upon the site where Columbus now stands, there were but two cabins and very little cleared ground, while now dwellings and business houses are numbered by the thousands, you naturally wonder and look for the causes that led up to this wonderful transformation. Two ideas come into mind: What were the forces used to build such a beautiful city, and who were the builders?

The land was chosen as a building site because of location upon the banks of the Scioto River. Also because of its commanding view of all the country which spread north, south and west into a fertile valley. The land rises gradually from the banks of the river eastward until the summit of what was then called Wolf Ridge (this name was often used by my father, David W. Brooks, in his conversation bearing upon the early settlement of Columbus, same having been used by his father, David Brooks) is reached. Virgin forest crowned the top of the ridge with its mighty, towering trees, and within its dense thicket, the gray wolf, the terror of the settler, made his lair. For this reason, and from the fact that the pioneers both at Franklinton and Columbus hunted these animals to destroy them as matter of self protection, the name of Wolf Ridge was originally given to the place where Columbus now stands.

One hundred and four years ago Nathaniel Hamlin and wife, natives of New Jersey, reached the banks of the Scioto, and resolved there to build their home. He purchased the land now occupied by, and round about where the Hoster plant is located. The vicinity in after years became known as Prison Hill, because the original penitentiary was built thereon. Lucas Sullivant had surveyed and laid out Franklinton about three years before, but on the east side of the river his only neighbor was an Indian captive, John Brickell (his first cabin or hut was on the west bank of the Scioto, a little north of where the Olentangy empties into the former stream. He afterwards moved across the river and occupied a plot of land near where the Ohio Penitentiary now stands.)

In 1804, Oct. 16th, the subject of this sketch, Keziah Hamlin, the first white child born in the future city, saw the light of day. The Hamlins had but recently erected their home, and when Keziah was born the cabin had no doors or windows. In order to keep howling, prowling wolves at bay by night, the father closed the openings with quilts, blankets and skins which he fixed firmly to the ground inside with heavy logs. Out of a maple sugar trough a cradle was improvised, and in that cradle she was rocked a thousand times by the happy mother who hummed a lullaby, alone in the mighty forest.

In connection with the early life of Keziah, the following Indian story is told in Howe's History of Ohio:—

"At this time a tribe of Wyandot Indians were located near a bend in the river just below the present Harrisburg bridge. They were friendly to the Hamlins, and were especially fond of Mrs. Hamlin's freshly baked bread. On bread baking days they would come into the cabin, and lifting aside the curtain which served as a door, enter and help themselves to the contents of the larder without asking permission or saying a word to the occupants. Upon leaving they would throw a haunch of vension or whatever game they had upon the floor as a compensation, and then silently take their departure.

"One day when Mrs. Hamlin was attending to her household duties with nobody present save her infant daughter, who was calmly sleeping in her crib, several of the Indians entered the cabin and without saying a word deliberately took up the sleeping infant and carried her away with them to their village, leaving Mrs. Hamlin trembling with fear and anxiety for the safety of her child.

As the hours passed by and the child was not returned, she suffered the greatest anguish and suspense, until the close of the day her sufferings were much relieved by the reappearance of the Indians bringing with them the child, which wore a beautiful pair of beaded moccasins upon her feet which the Indians had been industriously working upon all day and had felt the necessity of having the child with them so as to insure a perfect fit. This token of the appreciation of the savage race for the kindness and hospitality shown them by the early pioneers was preserved until a few years ago, but was unfortunately destroyed by one of the family then too young to appreciate their value." (Howe's Historical Collections of Ohio, Vol. I, page 660.)

The conditions surrounding the early childhood of this girl were characteristic of the lives of all our pioneers. The every day struggle for life and existence, the toil and hardship sustained through the long dreary days of winter, the clearing of the forest, the building of the roads by the men, and the cares of the household attended by the women, all of this gave strength to the body and clearness to the mind. It is from these families that a strong, and sturdy race of people have come. They have builded cities, and carved out a state that to day is honored among the union of states and a credit to the nation.

In her father's cabin, surrounded by such comforts and pleasures as a fast growing village could afford, Keziah Hamlin grew to womanhood. During this time families in quest of lands and homes were coming in rapidily from Massachusetts, Virginia, Pennsylvania, and a few from Connecticut, and now Columbus could boast of nearly three hundred inhabitants.

In 1817, David Brooks came to Ohio from the state of Massachusetts to seek his fortune. His family had taken root in Concord near Boston away back in 1636. His father and grandfather had fought in the French and Indian wars, also in the patriotic ranks under Washington during the war of the Revolution. Young Brooks met and married, December 19th, 1822, the pioneer's daughter, then a girl of less than twenty. It was but a few months until David Brooks and his young wife were owners and kept the popular tavern, known as the "Sign of the White Horse," which stood where the Odd Fellows' Temple is now situated.

The pair made an ideal host and hostess of the early period. He met his guests at the curb and his wife made them feel at home. Among the friends of early days who made this hostelry their abiding place were the Merions, Ambroses, McGowns, Hunters, Livingstons, Becks, Spragues, Jewetts, Goodales, and so on. The majority of these families were from the home state of Massachusetts. It was not an uncommon thing for families from the same states east, to form close ties of friendship and to be of the same social circle, when thus thrown together facing trials and hardships of the frontier, help of any kind being tendered in time of need and necessity. The ledger kept during that period by the proprietor of the White Horse will bravely testify to some accounts then long past due and still unpaid. Nevertheless the couple prospered, and the wife was a constant helpmeet to her husband, and a friend to all the country round. The first hard blow that entered in the home was the death of the father and husband in the year 1848, leaving a family of three sons and two daughters.

How well the mother performed her part to keep the children together, to raise them, and to give them such an education as the times could afford, need not be mentioned here. Suffice it to say that a woman born in the forest, enured to dangers and trials attendant upon same, would not flinch from her duty, when brought to it face to face.

Keziah Hamlin Brooks died in Columbus, Ohio, Feb. 4th, 1875. She was a woman of remarkably strong character. She was faithful and true to the many friends of her day, and during her entire life her faith in the Christian way of living was exemplified by her many acts of kindness and charity. She was buried from St. Paul's Episcopal church then located on the corner of Third and Mound streets. The services were conducted by the rector, Rev. R. W. Grange, who made impressive remarks concerning the life and history of the deceased. He spoke of her later years, which she devoted greatly to her church duties. She always took a great interest in the Pioneer Association. Quite a number of this association were in attendance at the services. The pall-bearers were all members of the early surviving families of her day, being J. E. St. Clair, C. P. L. Butler, N. Merion, Justin Morrison, John Otstot, Lincoln Kilbourne, and Wm. H. Slade. After the ceremony at the church, a large number of friends and relatives followed the hearse to Green Lawn, and there her body lies by the side of her husband within sight of the spot where she was born.

The following letter was written by David Brooks to his wife Keziah from Princeton, Mass. He frequently returned there, though at that time the journey was long and filled with danger. The trip had to be made overland by horseback or horse and buck-board through the then almost unsettled country.

PRINCETON, MASS., APRIL 20TH, 1828.

MY DEAR :—

I have arrived safe at home, and had a pleasant journey, and find my friends here are all well and pleased to see me. We arrived here on Wednesday last. Mr. Francis was in good spirits, and has gone on to his father's. I went yesterday to see Milton Brooks, and found him in pretty good health for him. He wishes to go back to the State of Ohio, but I don't think he will live to get back. Mrs. Boylston intends sending you a fashionable bonnet and cap by me when I return. I think I shall set out for home about the first of May.

Yours affectionately,

DAVID BROOKS.

(Original letter is possession of family, along with many others.)

The following letter received six years after the demise of Mr. Brooks, was written by a young lady school teacher from Wareham, Mass., who had been employed as instructor to the children in the family. It was no doubt intended to console the widow, also to cheer her and to brighten some of the hours that must have been filled with sorrowful thoughts of the past. She had become attached to the children for she alludes in two places to the son David and in another to son Henry. It is an interesting communication, having been written just fifty years ago. It shows that the young woman was perfectly capable of filling such a position.

WAREHAM, MASS., JUNE 22, 1854.

DEAREST FRIEND :—

Although year after year has passed since last we met, they have not proved years of forgetfulness, and often, very often, do I call to mind your many acts of kindness. Often I fancy myself at your side, breathing into your ears tales of disappointments, of sorrow, and of hope — this is when memory is busy with the past. Often I wonder why you did not answer my last communication. I cannot think you have forgotten me. It must be that many cares is a sufficient apology, — but David — what has become of him? Could he not stir memories' fount sufficient to call up some past times of sufficient interest to trace a few lines to an old friend? Perhaps some young fair beings occupy his better thoughts, his better wishes. As to my wonderful self, I have little to say. I have seen much sickness and sorrow, at times have tired of life — and again life is sweet, and surely you have drank of sorrow to its very dregs; but Hope, that bright star, is still before you, although at times its light is near extinguished.

I am not writing to-day thinking to interest or amuse you, but to beg you to tell me of everything that interests you. Then should you see fit to answer this scrawl, I will write a long letter, even so long as to tire you I think. David must be a good boy, and Henry is there, another spared, to write and tell me.

I am teaching a school for young men in this town. Last Thursday I was in Boston. I write fast for the church bell calls and I must go. Were I to tell you Lassie Strain is an author you would say this scribble does her no credit. Nor does it. But, dear Mrs. Brooks, if I stop to write a handsome letter I should not write for want of time. In the last three weeks I have written over one hundred and fifty pages for publication, besides teaching all day, and in the evening. I have seven young men under my care from seven to half past eight P. M. Nor have I one female pupil in my day school. I will send you a copy of some poetry that I wrote for Jenny Lind — that world-renowned songstress — if you will pardon me for not copying it. Take it as it is, and you are welcome.

Most respectfully,

L. M. STRAIN

BROOKS GENEALOGY.

1. HENRY Brooks was made freeman in Concord, Mass., March 14, 1639. Lived there a few years before this. Was born in England. Said to have come from London. Probably sailed from Cheshire district in which Liverpool is situated. (I believe him to be brother of Thomas Brooks, who was made freeman in Concord, December 7, 1636. Afterward moved to Watertown and owned Es't. at Medford, also brother of John Brooks, who was about this time one of the early settlers of New Haven, Conn.) Henry Brooks came to Woburn from Concord, and was proprietor of land there near "Horn Pond," January 10, 1652; selectman 1669. He married Susanna ———, who died September 15, 1681; married second, July 12, 1682, Annis Jaquith, and lived but a few months, dying April 12, 1683. His wife Susanna was prominent in the community and is referred to by Goodkin (Mass. Hist. Col. Vol. I, p. 168), "Goodwife Brooks an ancient and skillful woman living at Woburn famous in medical science." Children:

Feb. 5, 1890; and the "Ohio State Journal" said of him editorially:

"In the death of David W. Brooks Columbus has lost one of her representative and progressive citizens. He learned the printing trade in this office with General Comly and afterward made a success of life. He was also a valuable man in public affairs, notably in building the present city prison, when he was Police Commissioner, and in adopting a business system at the Central Insane Asylum, when he was its resident director. He was not only one who had done much for Columbus, but also for his State.

Mr. Brooks was born in this city February 22, 1828, at the site of the Odd Fellows' Temple, where his father kept a tavern with the sign of the 'White Horse.' His mother was Keziah Hamlin and was the first white child born in Columbus. Mr. Brooks began at the bottom of the ladder, and by energy and close attention to business amassed quite a fortune. He was in turn a clerk in the post-office, Deputy Clerk of the Supreme Court, clerk in the County Auditor's office, and held the office of County Clerk for a time by appointment of the County Commissioners. For a great many years he was in the grocery business with Nathaniel Merion and occupied the site at the southeast corner of High and Chapel street. He was at one time member of the Board of Police Commissioners by appointment, and was in great measure responsible for the movement which resulted in the erection of the present City Prison, being one of the projectors of the same, along with DeWitt C. Jones and George F. O'Harra. He was one of the trustees of the Asylum for the Insane under Governor Bishop. The bank of which Mr. Brooks was president was organized in 1869, though the present firm was formed at a later day.

He was a Knight Templar Mason and was a member of St. Paul's Episcopal Church. The funeral will take place from the residence to-morrow afternoon." Children :

REUNION.

The ninth reunion of the Association was held at Whalom Park, Fitchburg, Mass., Aug. 24, 1904, when it was voted that the next meeting shall be at the "Old Abbey," Lindell Ave., Leominster, Mass., date to be given later. A full report of the last meeting with a list of those present will appear in the Quarterly for January, 1905.

A TALE FOR THE CHILDREN.

(I do not recall the original title of the following poem, although the words, which I learned some fifty years ago, were forcibly brought to my mind by the Indian story on p. 98. As near as I can recall, it was learned from a stray leaf of the Youth's Companion.—Ed.

Away in the distant forest,
Where men like beasts were wild,
A white man built his cabin,
And dwelt with his wife and child.

The smoke of the nearest wigwam,
Rose up just o'er the hill,
It was hung with the skins of the panther,
The proofs of the hunter's skill.

'T was the home of a lonely Indian,
With painted face and grim,
Who boasted his scars of battle,
A score on every limb.

The white spoke Ta-he-yer kindly
And offered his plow to lend,
For he feared the stalwart savage
And gladly would make him friend.

One morning the white man early
To the distant town had gone,
Leaving his wife and daughter
At home in the wood alone.

Scarce peeped little Ida's bright eyes
Through their fringes of silk,
She had lisped her simple prayer
And drank her basin of milk,

When, sudden a dark, broad shadow,
Fell in at the open door,
Blent with the summer sunshine,
Crossing the sanded floor.

How trembled the pale-cheeked mother,
And clasped her babe to her breast,
But smiled Ta-he-yer good morning,
And listened his strange request.

He spoke with stateliest gesture,
And made her to know his will;
He would take the prattling Ida
To his home beyond the hill.

Up to the sun he pointed,
Now in its eastern track,
Saying when it sank to the westward
He would bring little Ida back.

The mother grew even paler,
Her heart felt deadly cold;
But she dare not rouse the anger
Of the redman stern and bold.

And kissing her precious daughter,
She tied on her hood like snow,
And gave to the arms of Ta-he-yer;
And Ida was pleased to go.

All day with praying and weeping,
She wandered from place to place,
Awaiting her husband's coming
And longing for Ida's face.

The sun went down on the hill-top,
The mother grew almost wild,
When joy, she spied in the distance,
Ta-he-yer bringing her child.

Nearer they came, and pointing
Her baby finger of rose,
"Mamma," said the little one gaily,
"See, Ida has pretty shoes."

The thankful mother espied them,
As hasting her child to meet,

A pair of moccasins bright wrought,
Fitting the tiny feet.

Ida patted the dark scarred bosom,
As it had a thousand charms,
And murmuring, "Good Uncle Ta-he-yer,"
She sprang from his yielding arms.

And many a day thereafter,
When Ida had older grown,
Ta-he-yer sat in his wigwam
On the hillside not alone.

For he taught the child to dye baskets,
With osier and goldenrod,
She taught him to read his Bible,
And pray to the Great True God.

415. Charles Farrow Carter,[9] b. in Albany, in 1841; educated in the public schools of Albany and Saratoga. Enlisted, Aug. 9, 1861, as private in Company B, First Wisconsin Cavalry. Saw severe scouting and guerilla service in the Western Army near Cape Girardeau, Mo., and other points. His health breaking down, he was discharged Sept. 11, 1862, returned to Saratoga, and resumed his law studies with the firm of Pond & Lester. His restless spirit led him to enter the service a second time, and he was commissioned 1st Lieut. Aug. 3, 1863, in the 2nd New York Veteran Cavalry, Col. Morgan H. Cheysler (called also Empire Light Cavalry); commissioned Capt. Sept. 13, 1863; acting Brig. Quartermaster, Alexandria, Va., in 1864. The regiment embarked at Alexandria, Jan. 28, 1864, arrived at New Orleans, La., Feb. 18, 1864, and soon joined the Red River Expedition, under Gen. Banks, at Cane River Crossing. Apr. 23, 1864, he volunteered to develop the enemy's lines, and riding to the front, along their line, drew their fire; in a blaze of musketry he attempted to gain our lines, whirled his horse, bent low in the saddle, and in the act received a terrible wound — similar to that received by Gen. Philip Kearney at Chantilly, Va., the ball lodging in the thigh bone. After eleven weary days of suffering in ambulance and transport, he was placed in the St. James Hospital, New Orleans. The ball could not be found. He was removed to his home in Pittsfield, enduring all the time excruciating agony. Here, at his urgent request, a surgical operation was performed, which he well knew meant death; the ball was removed from the marrow of the thigh, and while dying, at his request, it was placed in his hands. With a smile on his handsome face he expired, July 13, 1864.

OBITUARY.

Mrs. CLARA A. (Lincoln[9]) Carter, widow of Judge Chauncey W. Carter[9] (331), W. F. Q. Vol. II, p. 88, died at her home in Leominster, Mass., Sept. 9, 1904. She was born in Leominster, Feb. 10, 1833, daughter of Luke and Martha W. (Carter) Lincoln, and great great granddaughter of Joseph and Tabitha (Dodge,[5] (301) "Descendants of John White," Vol. I, p. 50) Hartwell. She married, in Leominster, May 13, 1868, Chauncey W. Carter, who died Dec. 4, 1903.

Mrs. Carter was much interested in genealogical work, was the author of the "Carter Genealogy," and had also done much valuable work on other old families of Lancaster and Leominster. Her loss will be deeply felt by many who knew her only through her work, as well as by her personal friends. She leaves one son, Robert L. Carter of Leominster, and a step-son, Alfred F. Carter of Sherborn, Mass., who have the heartfelt sympathy of all in their deep bereavement.

Rev. Andrew Dunn of Royalston, Mass., husband of Martha Ann Gerry[8] (5398), Vol. I, p. 61, died July 13, 1901, aged 88 years. He was born in Gardner, Mass., June 15, 1813, son of Vinal and Dolly (Whitney) Dunn. He was sixteen years of age when he was converted and united with the Baptist church in Weston, Mass. Very soon after he had the conviction that he was called of God to preach the Gospel. So fully persuaded was he that this was his duty, that he began to study and prepare himself for his life work under the instruction of Judge Mellen of Wayland, and his pastor, Rev. T. R. Ropes. Having to depend on his own resources, he taught school to secure a competency to defray his expenses until he was well fitted to enter Newton Theological Seminary, Sept., 1839. He was licensed to preach by the church in Weston, Sept. 11, 1838; graduated from Newton in 1842; was called to the Baptist church in Winchendon, Mass., where he was ordained Aug. 20, 1842, remaining ten years. Subsequently he served the following churches: Holden, North Bridgewater, Weymouth, Chatham, Still River, Harvard, East Gloucester, East Haverhill, Rowell, West Newbury and East Brookfield, Mass., also in Fitzwilliam, N. H. His last pastorate was in Royalston, where he served the church for five years; the last ten years of his life he was unable to preach. Mr. Dunn married first Sophia L. Williams of Newton. He married second, June 10, 1890, Mrs. Martha A. (Gerry) Wheeler of Royalston, who cheered his declining years and faithfully cared for him in his last illness. This faithful servant of the Lord served his Redeemer for a half century in actual labor in the ministry; was a man of deep conviction, a devout, earnest, spiritual minded and enthusiastic preacher of the Gospel. Besides his wife, one of his two sons survive him.

Rev. GEORGE Sumner Ball[7] (18818), Vol. II, p. 31, died in Upton, Mass., Sept. 5, 1902. He was born in Leominster, Mass., May 22, 1822, son of Micah and Rachel (Lincoln) Ball; his father was a deputy sheriff and also ran the first stage line from Worcester to Fitchburg, Mass. His early life was one of hard work and many privations. Aside from the common school he received but little education. At the age of sixteen he bought his time and by hard personal effort succeeded in entering Meadville Theological School, where he graduated in 1847, with the first class ever sent out from that institution; and was ordained at Ware, Mass., Oct. 13, 1847. He remained there two years, then settled in Upton. Chaplain Ball was one of the most widely-known veterans of the Civil War. In the 21st regiment and again in the 36th, he proved himself to be the friend of the soldiers; from Nov. 28, 1861, at Annapolis, through the battlefields of Roanoke, Camden and Chantilly, he rendered notable service to his country. Besides his service in the army, he was in Plymouth two years, yet he always counted Upton as his home. His pastorate over the Unitarian parish at West Upton covered a period of more than forty years, having been regularly installed in February, 1850. Mr. Ball was a delegate to the Constitutional Convention in 1853; in 1861 he was elected representative to the general court, came home from the army and was present at its organization; was re-elected in 1862, but resigned. In 1863 he served as Chaplain of the house, was a member of it in 1864 and 1866, and in 1867 was elected to the senate. He married, in Ware, June 18, 1848, Hannah B. Nourse of Bolton, Mass.; to them were born eight children; of these, besides the mother, three daughters and two sons survive. The news that Chaplain Ball was mustered out occasioned sincere sorrow in Grand Army circles throughout the state; he was in a regiment which made a glorious record, and part of the honor belonged to Upton's grand old man.

GEORGE Albert Rowlandson[9] (4864), Vol. I, p. 415, of Mt. Vernon, N. Y., died at Rye Beach, Long Island, N. Y., Aug. 15, 1904. He was born in Mt. Vernon, Oct. 11, 1870, son of Oscar S. and Charlotte (Hopping) Rowlandson. He was a bookkeeper in the home office of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, New York City. On Sunday he went to Rye Beach with several members of his family and having such a good time decided to stay until Monday night; and on Monday afternoon while swimming about he started for the shore, but when in about four feet of water was seen to throw up his hands and, without a cry, sink under the surface. They immediately went to his rescue and recovered the body without any difficulty. A doctor was called but found that his efforts were useless, and said that he had evidently been killed from an attack of heart trouble, which it was known he was subject to. Mr. Rowlandson was one of the leading members of the 71st New York regiment at the outbreak of the Spanish war. When the news of the declaration of war was received, he volunteered his services, which were accepted; and when the regiment left, on May 4, 1898, for Camp Black, Long Island, he was one of the men who marched down Fifth avenue in its ranks, and when at Tampa, Fla., he made many friends among the members of different regiments waiting there for transportation to the Island He took part in the battles of San Juan Hill and El Caney, on July 23, or just before the fall of Santiago; he was foraging with a party of nine men and was cut off from the American column by a band of Insurgents; these men held a hill against an overwhelming force for eleven days. It was while thus defending the hill that he contracted yellow fever and he was reported missing from his command. In the meantime he had been sent north on one of the hospital ships and reached his home, where by careful nursing he recovered some degree of his former health. In the death of Mr. Rowlandson, is lost an only son and brother, also the last male member in the ninth generation of the descendants of Rev. Joseph and Mary (White) Rowlandson, his father now being the last to bear the name.

Howard M. Lane, husband of Sarah B. Carter[8] (268), White Family Quarterly, Vol. II, p. 85, died in Leominster, Mass., Feb. 8, 1904. He was born in Epping, N. H., Dec. 12, 1833, attended the common school in his native town and the Seminary at Tilton, N. H. Mr. Lane went to Leominster in 1851, and worked in the piano case manufacturing with his brother, J. C. Lane, and for

Mr. Page of Fitchburg, Mass. In 1857 he succeeded his brother and continued the business successfully; was also manager and treasurer of the gas light company until 1902, when he gave up active business. Mr. Lane was a man of strong convictions, and a shrewd business man; his integrity was never for a moment questioned; he took deep interest in municipal affairs and his advice was often sought because of his wide range of knowledge and good judgment. He served the town as a member of the water board, moderator at town meetings, selectman, and in many other capacities, being representative in 1868, also special commissioner of Worcester County. He was a republican, member of the Leominster club and the board of trade; he was a kind friend in time of need. He married, Jan. 21, 1863, Sarah Brooks, daughter of James H. and Caroline (Carter) Carter, who died at Coronado Beach, California, while on a trip for her health, Feb. 11, 1902. One daughter, Carrie C., wife of Edmund Munsie, survives him.

"The Lord is good: a stronghold in the day of trouble."

REPORT OF THE NINTH REUNION, 1904

Whalom Park, Fitchburg, Mass., Aug. 24, 1904; the ninth annual reunion of the "Association of the Descendants of John White" of Salem, Wenham and Lancaster, was called to order by the President, John B. White of Kansas City, Mo., at 11:10 A. M. Prayer was offered by Vice President John F. White of Somerville, Mass. The record of the meeting in Lancaster, in 1903, was read by the secretary, and approved as read.

Because of the absence of the treasurer, George A. White, Franklin Park, Mass., who is suffering from the effects of a broken limb, the treasurer's report was read by the assistant secretary as follows:—

This report showed a deficit of $29.42. The secretary explained that $25.00 of this deficit was for Association badges that had been delivered since the meeting of 1903. After this explanation the Association voted to accept the report.

Special Committees: The committee to ascertain if a favorable reply would be given to the Petition to "The Cemetery Committee of Lancaster," as adopted at the meeting of 1903, made their report by reading the letter received from the Committee. The chairman of the Committee, J. F. White of Somerville, prefaced the report with the statement that the writing of that letter was almost the last work done by the Hon. Henry S. Nourse, and that in his death the "Association of the Descendants of John White" lost the best friend that they had in the old town of Lancaster. The letter was as follows:

South Lancaster, Mass., Nov. 1, 1903.

Mr. John F. White,

Assistant Secretary of the "Association of the Descendants of John White of Lancaster."

Dear Sir:—

The cemetery committee of Lancaster, Mass., at a regular monthly meeting this day held, considered your communication of October 28, ult., requesting permission "to set within the limits of the Old Cemetery a Memorial to our ancestors," and it was unanimously voted to grant the request. It is mutually understood that the said Memorial in its location, material, style and inscription, must be subjeet to the approval of said Cemetery Committee.

By order of the Cemetery Committee of Lancaster,

HENRY S. NOURSE,

Secretary.

Report accepted by vote and ordered put upon the records. Remarks were made by President White, Mr. J. H. Leavitt of Waterloo, Iowa, Miss Myra L. White and others, as to the character of the proposed Memorial. It was finally voted, on motion of Mr. J. H. Leavitt, "That a committee be appointed by the chair to consider the matter, and if the condition of the treasury would warrant, to complete the work, otherwise to report at the next annual meeting." Then the chair appointed as that committee:

John F. White, Somerville.
Geórge A. White, Franklin Park.
Charles S. Houghton, Leominster.
Miss Myra L. White, Haverhill.

Good of the Association:

Mr. Horace White of Richville, N. Y., mildly criticized the methed of notification of the time and place of the meeting, and urged that a more extended notice be given next year, even to the sending of individual notices. Others spoke on the same general line. The secretary then took the floor and spoke energetically in her own defense, calling attention to the vast amount of work that she had willingly done in the years past for the Association, in the putting out of the twenty-five hundred or more notices to individuals and families, in the effort to obtain a large attendance at the annual gathering. That the results had not been in any measure commensurate to the labor involved, either to the Association or to herself in the effort to sell the first and second volumes of her book. That she had decided that she could no longer give so much of her time with so little result. That she was doing genealogical work for others now to pay necessary expenses. And urging that the members of the families, near and far, would give larger support to the Quarterly, that her work on that line might be carried forward, or that must be abandoned. Mr. Horace White disclaimed any thought to add to the already arduous labor of the secretary, but hoped that some measure would be taken to bring together a larger number of the family. Several spoke at some length upon the matter, the preponderance of sentiment being in favor of notices sent to members. President White said if the secretary would furnish him with the mail list, that he would see that such notice was duly made. It was regularly voted that card notices be sent next year. Dinner having been announced, recess was ordered until 2 P. M.

At the appointed hour the President called the Association to order and announced that the first number on the after dinner program would be a vocal selection by Mrs. Sara M. Haley of South Lee, N. H. The selection rendered by Mrs. Haley was very cordially received, as was evidenced by the abundance of applause.

Mr. J. H. Leavitt moved that from this date the annual dues be one dollar for men and fifty cents for women. Considerable discussion followed this motion, but when the vote was taken the motion was declared carried. Then the chair requested that the Register be read. It was brought forward to the table and read by the assistant secretary.

At this time President White left the chair and taking the floor made a very strong, earnest appeal for financial aid for Miss Myra White's present need, and equally strong appeal for aid along the line of the printing of the third volume and ending his remark with this magnificent offer: That he would pay the entire expense of printing the third volume. That he would present to her two hundred copies. That he would keep for himself fifty copies, on which he proposed later to make some money. That he would hold for her the other two hundred and fifty copies subject to her order, and that the cost to her should be only the actual cost to him of each book. Prolonged applause followed the President's earnest speech. The President, having resumed the chair, requested the assistant secretary to pass through the audience and receive such subscription as the friends were ready to make for the benefit of Miss White and also subscription for the third volume.

The report showed:

Cash subscriptions	$70 00
Two subscriptions for third volume	10 00

Miss Myra thanked the friends for their response to the appeal in a few well chosen words.

Mr. Horace White, with his kindly face beaming with good will for the Association, moved the nomination of the present board of officers. Mr. J. H. Leavitt seconded the nomination and put the vote. The vote was unanimously in favor and Mr. Leavitt declared the following officers duly elected:

President—John B. White, Kansas City, Mo.
Vice Pres.—George S. Houghton, Reading, Mass.
Vice Pres.—Joseph H. White, Antwerp, N. Y.
Vice Pres.—Lucius A. Warner, Beacon Falls, Ct.
Vice Pres.—Hon. John W. Kimball, Fitchburg, Mass.
Vice Pres.—John F. White, Somerville, Mass.
Vice Pres.—Mrs. Sarah A. Morrison, Tidioute, Pa.
Vice Pres.—Henry R. Smith, Leominster, Mass.
Vice Pres.—Henry D. White, Grand Valley, Pa.
Vice Pres.—Charles H. White, Grandin, Mo.
Vice Pres.—Milo S. Harrington, Westminster, Mass.
Treasurer—George A. White, Franklin Park, Mass.
Secretary—Miss Myra L. White, Haverhill, Mass.

Mr. Horace White stated that on a recent visit to the "Old Abbey" in Leominster, the occupant suggested that the "Whites" meet there at some time in the future, so Mr. White moved that the next meeting be at the "Old Abbey". The motion was declared carried. Miss Myra White suggested that it would be especially appropriate to have an "historical address" on Josiah White's Ten Sons. President White appointed John F. White of Somerville to prepare the address, and Miss Myra volunteered to furnish the necessary data. It was voted that the date of the meeting be left with the executive committee. No further business being offered for the consideration of the meeting, President White invited Mr. Horace White of Richville to come forward and favor the Association with the recitation that made such an excellent impression one year ago. Mr. White kindly responded and gave the recitation "How can we lift them up," in his own inimitable way. The hearty applause that followed, showed how the friends present appreciated this effort of our young old friend. Voted to adjourn subject to the call of the executive committee.

JOHN F. WHITE, Assistant Secretary.

MARY Ann Lincoln[8] (43a) b. in Leominster, Mass., Aug. 3, 1806; and now living in the home of her birth. I am indebted to the Leominster Enterprise for the following interesting sketch of Miss Lincoln: —

"Passing the allotted age of threescore and ten as swiftly as time itself, Miss Mary Ann Lincoln has since gathered birthdays like a cluster of sweet-smelling flowers. Today she attains the remarkable age of 98, making her the oldest person in town, oldest in years and oldest in nativity, for she was born and has since lived in the little old-fashioned house on Union street where this afternoon many friends, neighbors and acquaintances dropped in to extend their cheer and compliments.

The house was built in 1774 by her grandfather, William Lincoln. The architecture represents a custom long since obsolete, the posting being low, the windows small and the chimney large. Miss Lincoln is surrounded by many that to her are priceless heirlooms of her ancestry which keep her in touch with memories which are both joyful and sad.

Miss Lincoln's father began life in the old house when he was 5 years old. Her parents were married in the room in which she was born, which is in the southeast corner of the house. In the hallway is grandfather's clock, which chronicled the hour of these two important events. The marriage took place in 1797; the birth occurred Aug. 3, 1806, when Leominster was nothing more than a hamlet.

Miss Lincoln says she does not know how old the clock is. She associates it with her infancy and in childhood frequently heard her parents allude to it as dating back to their own younger days. It is of very ancient style, made of wood and run by weights These are lifted when the clock is wound, the cords to which they are attached revolving backwards on the roll by means of a spring which then winds the cord.

In responding to questions as to her personal life, Miss Lincoln declared with a smile that 'she could not see why anything published about her could be of especial public interest. To be sure, she had lived almost a century, but there are others equally old.' She has not followed any particular rule of living to produce longevity.

Until recent years Miss Lincoln has passed her entire time at the old homestead. Lately, however, she has spent the winter with a nephew, George Lincoln, who lives close by. She does this because it is difficult to heat the old house in the good old-fashioned way that is now considered insufficient for a woman 98 years old.

Miss Lincoln is by no means a recluse; neither is she yet 'laid on the shelf.' She was among the most interested persons present at the recent dedication of the new Unitarian church, of which society she is a member, and in which she was active in her younger days. She has listened to all the ministers of the church except the first one, Rev. John Rogers.

Her story of the inconveniences and hardships attending divine worship 75 years ago is peculiarly interesting. The degree of warmth depended upon the weather. Miss Lincoln is the only living charter member of the Ladies' Benevolent society connected with the church. She was for years a teacher in the Sunday school, many of her scholars now being gray-haired men and women.

She remembers the old Unitarian church that once stood on the common, in front of where now is the drug store of Charles F. Nixon. She has a wide acquaintance, and says she believes there is not another person in Leominster who has so many nephews and nieces as she, for nearly everybody who knows her calls her Aunt Mary Ann, and she likes it, too.

Miss Lincoln recollects when she went to a school in a little old school house on Franklin street, known as No. 8, and to her home was more than a mile, she recalls that she passed only two houses on the road, where on the same ground there are now more than 100 nice houses.

She was one of a family of six children, three boys and three girls, and is the last one of the family, having lived a score of years longer than any of her brothers and sisters. Miss Lincoln has all of her mental faculties in remarkable condition, and can now write as good a letter as most of the young people of the present generation.

Miss Lincoln feels that it is an honor to say that she is the oldest person in Leominster, and was born in the house in which she has passed so many years.

She keeps busy kniting, while she pays considerable attention to reading and goes out driving frequently. She greatly enjoys going about and calling upon the companions of her younger days. She talks very interestingly of early Leominster when in a reminiscent mood, for she has seen the town grow from a few hundred inhabitants to having a population exceeding 15,000.

Miss Lincoln bids fair to live to be 100. Her health is good and she lives a contented life at the old home, where she receives her friends with a charm and grace which makes them feel that they are welcome, indeed."

OBITUARY.

JONATHAN Grout Shepard[7] (8273), p. 716, Vol. I. "Descendants of John White", died in South Deerfield, Mass., Oct. 12, 1904, aged 83 years. Mr. Shepard was born in Buckland, Mass., Aug. 18, 1821; married in 1850, Theta Phila Scott of Phelps, N.Y. He was for many years an overseer in a cotton mill in Chicopee, Mass., but later living upon a farm. Mrs. Shepard died Feb., 1899.

Mrs. ANNA Eliza (Shepard) Page (8276), p. 706, Vol. I., died in South Deerfield, Mass., Apr. 30, 1904. Mrs. Page was born in Buckland, Mass., May 20, 1829; she married George S. Page, who died in 1898.

Andrew Lucian Houghton Fitch, husband of Abbie F. Wheeler[8] (9042), p. 18, Vol. II., died in Maplewood, Mo., Nov. 2, 1904, at the home of his daughter, Mrs. John Craig. Mr. Fitch was born in Lancaster, Mass., Jan. 28, 1837, son of George and Sophronia Willard (Houghton) Fitch; he married (1) Apr. 29, 1860, Abbie F. Wheeler; they lived in Sterling, Mass., where she died Mar. 21, 1893. He married (2) Sept. 19, 1894, Minnie G. dau. of Langsford[8] and Elvira (Everett) Harrington (5605), p. 482, Vol. I.,) of Princeton, Mass. He leaves beside his wife, three children, Nellie E., wife of Fred W. Kendall of Sterling, Caroline L., wife of John Craig of Maplewood, and George A. Fitch of Sterling.

Horace White[8] (7709), p. 654, Vol. I., died at his home in Richville, town of Dekalb, N Y., Nov. 18, 1904. Mr. White was born in Dekalb, June 29, 1828; married Mar. 6, 1850, Clarissa P. Lake, born July 16, 1830; she died in Richville, Apr. 28, 1902. He was educated in the district schools of Dekalb and the Weslyan Seminary of Gouverneur, N.Y.; most of his life was spent upon the farm where he died, which is now occupied by his youngest son and his family; and his home life was ideal. Mr. and Mrs. White were possessed of the true secret of hospitality and understood making guests feel they were truly welcome, and no one who shared their home, where love seemed the ruling power, could forget the feeling of true rest it gave.

Although advanced in years no one thought of Mr. White as old. Few of his age had so many friends among the young people. His life was not only long but very happy. He found his happiness in doing good to others. Mr. White was a member of the Association of the "Descendants of John White;" it is but a few months since he met with us and it seems sad indeed that we shall never more see his beaming face or listen to his pleasant voice; those who heard him will never forget the vigor and spirit with which he recited those inspiring words, "How can we lift them up." His character was beautiful, he never allowed an unkind word to pass his lips and all who knew him were his friends. Unselfishness was a part of his nature and wherever he went was sunshine and good will; his own happiness was found in planning the happiness of others. He loved to hear words of praise, not words of censure. His warm and gentle nature, his cheerfulness, generosity and devotion to duty endeared him to a host of friends who will long cherish his memory. Well may it be said of him as has been said of others, "If everyone to whom he has done a kind act should lay a rose upon his bier, he would sleep tonight under a wilderness of flowers." Mr. White had a long and honorable history in masonry for twenty-five years; he was the master mason of Richville lodge, and several years ago he was the district deputy master for the district. In Dec. 1866, he joined the St. Lawrence Commandry at Canton, N.Y., and in 1903 he joined the Scottish Rites at Rochester Consistory. He was a 32nd degree mason and if he had lived until December he would have been crowned with the highest degree in masonry. The committal charge at the grave was impressively spoken by J. Hungerford Smith of Rochester when the body was consigned to its final resting place. This honor was given Mr. Smith because of his life long and intimate friendship with the deceased. Mr. White had made his father a master mason and all of his five sons and had been invited to bestow the master's degree upon Mr. Smith's son in December. Mr. White is survived by two sons, J. Stuart White, a lumber man of Omaha, Neb., and Chapman V. White of Richville, and three granddaughters.

PHINEAS Dodge[8] (2669), p. 225, Volume I, died at his home in Millwood, Rowley, Mass., Dec. 4, 1904, aged nearly 98 years.

He was the son of Solomon and Betsey (Pickard) Dodge, born in Rowley, Feb. 26, 1807; married in Georgetown, Mass., Dec. 22, 1829, Sophia, dau. of Jeremy and Eunice (Stickney) Chaplain, born in Rowley, Feb. 28, 1809. They lived together nearly sixty years, she dying Dec. 26, 1888. Mr. Dodge was a farmer and miller, he and his sons owning an old fashioned saw mill which has been in the family more than one hundred years, being used for sawing ship timber. He was a man of great strength and energy; a high sense of honor, of independant mind and marked kindness to his neighbors. In his death Rowley loses her oldest citizen. He leaves two sons, Ignatius S. Dodge of Georgetown, and P. Alphonso Dodge of Rowley, and one daughter, Betsie P. Dodge, who cared for her father in his declining years.

THOMAS M. PUTNAM

WHITE FAMILY QUARTERLY.

VOLUME III. APRIL, 1905. NUMBER II.

"The Lord is good: a stronghold in the day of trouble."

THOMAS M. PUTNAM.

Thomas M. Putnam, husband of Eunice L. (Cram[8]) Putnam (4281) Vol. I, p. 373, died at his home in Danvers, Mass., June 9, 1897. He was born in Danvers, "Putnamville", Sept. 15, 1817, son of Samuel and Mary (Herrick) Putnam, he was one of thirteen children; nine of whom lived to middle life and five passed the allotted age of man. He received his education in the schools of his native town and the academy in Pembroke, N. H. In early manhood he worked first in his father's shoe factory, later for his uncle Moses; Moses and Samuel Putnam being pioneers in this branch of industry in Essex county. Afterward he was in business for himself; first having a leather store in Boston, later he manufactured shoes in his father's old factory in Putnamville for some years. In 1861 he removed to Danvers Plains, and in '63 he moved to his home on Maple street where he died. For some years, after leaving Putnamville, he was in the produce business, later a dealer in nursery stock, but for several years before his death he had not been in any regular business.

He married Sept. 17, 1843, Mrs. Eunice L. (Cram) Perkins of Hampton Falls, N. H., with whom he lived nearly 54 years. Amid all the changing scenes of their married life, its many vicissitudes of joy and sorrow, their love and devotion to each other never swerved, their faith and trust in each other never wavered; even during the last few months of increasing feebleness when heart and flesh failed him, his wife had power to soothe, and influence to control as no one else could.

Five children were born to them, two boys died in infancy and two daughters, Mrs. Flora A. Foster of Peabody, Mass., and Miss S. Agnes Putnam, who has always lived at home, the stay and comfort of her parents declining years; a son, Webster F. Putnam of Danvers, two grand children, Marion H. and Webster F. Putnam, Jr., and his invalid widow survive him. His brother, Henry, who has always resided on the old homestead in Putnamville, is the last surviving member of that large family circle.

Mr. Putnam had been a consistent, exemplary member of the Maple Street Congregational Church for about thirty years. He was very regular in his attendance at church and Sunday school until his health failed, especially at Sunday school in which he retained his interest in a marked degree, often going an entire year without missing a Sunday.

He was a man of strict integrity, honest almost to a fault, a hard worker, spending few idle minutes; apt in the use of tools, doing many a job of carpenter work in a manner creditable to a trained workman. When a young man, he built a large and pretty summer house in his father's garden at the old homestead; and through summer heat and winter storms it stood until a short time ago.

He possessed a fund of dry wit and humour, was something of a mimic and generally had a good story to tell, fitted to the occasion. He was fond of music, had a good bass voice, and sang in the church choir for years. He was a lover of pets, and extremely fond of flowers; when dealing in nursery stock it was his delight to procure and cultivate rare plants and shrubs.

For the last two years he had been in failing health and more especially for the last two months, his sickness was very distressing in every way, but at the last the end was most peaceful.

Mrs. EUNICE L. Cram[8] Putnam (4281), Vol. I., p. 373, widow of the late Thomas M. Putnam, died at her home on Maple street, Danvers, Mass., Jan. 3, 1905, aged nearly ninety years. She was born in Hampton Falls, N. H., Mar. 8, 1815, daughter of Benjamin and Rebecca Fletcher (White[7]) Cram (4227) p. 365, Vol. I, "Descendants of John White." She was one of six children, a delicate child, the weak one of the flock who was not expected to reach womanhood; yet she was the last to go home, outliving all of her brothers and sisters. But her health was never good, she was not strong, though she knew how to expend her strength so well that she accomplished more than many in good health. For the last fifteen years she was an invalid, giving up the care of her home to her daughter, Agnes. Several times during the years she had a long serious illness, going to death's very door, then she would rally and be comparatively comfortable again; she had great recuperative powers, a strong will and a desire to live, a daughter, Agnes, who — as her pastor aptly expressed it was for years hands, feet, eyes and almost breath to that mother; she had a son, who procured for her every comfort and many a luxury; a doctor, who was not only a skilled physician, but a valued friend, so she had many helps to prolong life.

MRS. THOMAS M. PUTNAM

She married Sept. 17, 1843, Thomas Meady Putnam of Danvers, with whom she lived nearly 54 years. Their married life was a very happy one, trouble and sorrow came to them, sickness, death, misfortune of various kind, but through all life's changing scenes, their love and trust in each other was never broken, there never was a shadow between them, perfect faith and confidence in each other remained always theirs.

When the husband and father went home, after a short, severe illness, it was feared that the invalid wife would not long survive him; but she rallied from the shock, as it did not seem possible that she could, and lived seven years and a half without him. Mrs. Putnam had five children, two sons died in infancy, two daughters, Mrs. Flora A. Foster and Miss S. Agnes Putnam, a son, Webster F. Putnam and four grandchildren, a girl and three boys survive her. All her other near relatives have passed away.

She was a most devoted wife and mother, her husband and children were her constant thought and care, to make home happy and comfortable her earnest endeavor, she was most unselfish and self-sacrificing.

She had a great head for planning, much executive ability, would have made a good business man, knew how to spend money so advantageously that she could make one dollar do the work of two. She was very skilled with her needle, such dainty stitches and such a rapid sewer one seldom sees. The winter the eldest daughter was attending a commercial school in Boston, she made her a pretty dress, a dark plum colored skirt almost black, trimmed with a wide scarlet fold, a plum colored vest, a little cut-away scarlet jacket braided with black, as pretty and dainty a costume as any girl could wish. It was the girl's favorite dress; she went by the name of "Red-jacket" at the school all that winter.

This daughter was six and a half years older than her sister, her mother always made a companion of her, they were more like sisters than mother and daughter. As she grew to womanhood she had gentlemen friends and several correspondents, she always read the letters to her mother, and her answers also, and her mother seemed to enjoy the correspondence as much as the daughter. If more daughters would make confidants of their mothers fewer would go wrong, and if more mothers were like this one, the daughters would enjoy telling their plans and interest to them.

Mrs. Putnam had a firm religious faith, no matter how dark the day, how thorny the path, she never lost trust in her Father's love and care; she would always see some bright spot. She was a very helpful person in time of trouble, with a most humble estimate of her own merits. When for many years she was not able to attend church, her son's prayers were one of her greatest enjoyments; he always came and prayed with her every Sunday afternoon. She had a roll of Scripture text which gave her great pleasure, a page for every day; no matter if she knew many of them, when the roll was worn and needed replacing she was very particular to have one just like the old one.

Into the quiet of her life came a new joy, her son married Miss Meldran of Manchester, Mass., and the new daughter was very dear to her, quite as dear as her own. "A man's wife makes or mars him." Before his marriage her son was devoted to his parents, a kind and loving brother, his wife was in every sense a help and incentive to every worthy motive, every noble purpose, so that he was more kind and thoughtful to his own people than ever before. After a time the grandchildren came one after another, first a little girl, then three boys, and every child was a new delight to grandmother.

Mrs. Putnam was always doing little kind acts, planning little surprises that many would not tnink of — for instance: The oldest daughter married a sea captain, he made several voyages without her, the 17th of August, 1874, she sailed from New York with him for Callio, South America, a long voyage around Cape Horn. Picture to yourself a gallant bark on the wide ocean, hundreds of miles from home, and wind and wave every minute bearing her farther away. The young wife is busy with her sewing this morning, she is happy beyond expression for she is with her husband; but, as she works, she is thinking of the dear ones at home, loving them as never before, counting the weeks and months that must pass before she can hear from them. As she takes the last thread of cotton from the ball, she sees that the paper on which it was wound has writing on it. How eagerly she unfolds, devours the words, a loving message from mother. How the glad tears come! how the love goes out to that mother so far away! and how hard it is to keep from unwinding all the cotton, and looking into the boxes of buttons and the like to find the other little notes she is so sure are hidden there. But she has had her "word" for today, she will wait, some other day she will need one more. She loved all pretty dainty things, was extremely fond of flowers, when she was able to be out she always had a pretty garden in the summer and house plants in winter; she had great success with her flowers, one of her daughters said, "That if mother put a stick in the ground it would grow."

Her last sickness was a long and painful one, stricken with paralysis the 16th of May, 1903, she lived nearly twenty months, a patient sufferer. The shock appeared slight, but she never spoke after it, never left her bed, only as she was moved to another to rest her and change her position. She had to be fed and tended like a baby all these weary months, but her devoted daughter, Agnes, gave her the most faithful service, the most tender care. She understood what was said to her until the last few weeks of her life, would nod her head in assent, or shake in dissent, sometimes when she was comfortable she would try to smile on the doctor or her pastor when they called to see her, her own sweet, sunny smile. Sometimes she seemed glad to see the little children; the last few weeks of her life she was so feeble that she did not notice anything, and at the very last she just fell asleep — the sleep that knows no awakening. She has gone to her happy home, her home of peace and rest, her dear ones miss her, but they cannot mourn for her after the long, hard struggle, the battle is fought, the victory won.

GRACE O. (WHITE) DOWNING.

Mrs. Grace O. (White[8]) Downing (4294), Vol. I, p. 376, died in Boston, Mass., Mar. 19, 1905. She was born in Center Harbor, N. H., Aug. 18, 1847, daughter of Timothy Fletcher[7] and Irene (Hodsdon) White. Her childhood was spent in Moultonboro, N. H., where she attended the district school. She married in Haverhill, Mass, Dec. 6, 1871, Charles H., son of Samuel and Eliza D. (Whitehouse) Downing. After a few years spent in Haverhill the family removed to Exeter, N. H., where two of the children were born. In a few years a return to Haverhill was made, where she resided until 1901, when she removed to Boston. Mrs. Downing became a Christian in early life and was a member of the First Baptist Church of Haverhill. Although she was never strong and was often completely prostrated for months, she was devoted to her family and all their interests, and in time of their need seemed endowed with superhuman strength and endurance. Although her burdens often seemed too heavy for her to bear, yet her faith in her Heavenly Father never failed. Her life was full of trial yet she fainted not. She was cheerful and hopeful to the last, planning for the comfort and happiness of her loved ones. She leaves, besides her husband, three children, Ernest Lyman Downing of Plaistow, N. H., Dr. Dana Fletcher Downing of West Newton, Mass, and Ethel Grace Downing of Boston; two brothers, Charles H. White of Wilton, N. H., and

Lyman H. White of Meredith, N. H.; four sisters, Mrs. Hannah C. Coates of Boston, Mrs. F. L. Moody of Manchester, N. H., Miss Myra L. White of Haverhill, and Mrs. C. C. Clement of South Framingham, Mass. A large circle of friends join the immediate family in mourning her loss. She lies buried beside her oldest daughter and youngest son in the family lot in Exeter. We have "seen a vision and have heard the song" of a beautiful life; the vision has vanished and the song is stilled, yet the memory of them and of the blessed influences of that life is left

> "And I heard a voice from heaven saying unto me,
> Write, Blessed are the dead which die in the > Lord from henceforth: Yea, saith the Spirit, > that they may rest from their labours; and > their works do follow them."

Mrs. Fannie E. (Shannon) Gilman, wife of Harold W. Gilman[8] (4396), Vol. I, p. 377, died in Chelmsford, Mass., June 21, 1905. She was born in Lynn, Mass., Sept. 3, 1874, daughter of Richard and Delia (Currier) Shannon. They were married July 27, 1896, and most of their married life was spent in Lowell, Mass., her health failing, they went to Chelmsford for the country air hoping it might benefit her, but no improvement was made and she soon passed away. She leaves a mother, step-father and brothers and sisters, who with her husband have the sympathy of all in their bereavement.

Mrs. Louisa R. (Locke) White, widow of William H. White[7] (16704), Vol. II, p. 618, died at her home in Cambridge, Mass., April 9, 1904. She was born in Lancaster, Mass., Dec. 23, 1816, daughter of Jonathan F. and Mary (Tufts) Locke. She was married in Somerville, Mass., Dec. 19, 1848, to Mr. White and their married life was spent in Cambridge, where he died Oct. 4, 1897. At the 250th anniversary in Lancaster, June 30, 1903, Mrs. White was able to be present and she and her two sisters occupied their father's pew during the exercises in the church. Mrs. White leaves two children, Lucy Ellen and Francis Atwood White of Cambridge, who deeply feel the loss of a loving mother.

James Burpee, husband of Eunice Wilder Goss[7] (12496), Vol. II, p. 277, died at the home of his son, Frederick W. Burpee, in West Boylston, Mass., Feb. 7, 1905. He was born in Sterling, Mass., Jan. 25, 1817, and has spent his life there, was the oldest person in town. He married May 23, 1843, Eunice W., daughter of Capt. John and Rebecca (White[6]) Goss, b. in Lancaster, Mass., Feb. 25, 1816; she died in Sterling, Jan. 24, 1891. Mr. Burpee was for many years a successful farmer, an early member of the local grange, at one time president of the Sterling Farmer's and Mechanic's Club; also serving the town several years as road commissioner. He leaves three sons and three daughters: William H. Burpee, Leominster, Frederick W. Burpee, West Boylston, and J. Samuel Burpee, Sterling, Mrs. Henry S. Sawyer, Sterling, Mrs. George F. Butterick and Miss Hattie Burpee.

William Barnes Carter, husband of Mary A. Sawyer[10] (1726), Vol. I, p. 170, died at the home of his son, Horace C. Carter, in Somerville, Mass., Feb. 10, 1905. He was born in Berlin, Mass., Sept. 13, 1822, son of Leonard and Persis (Bailey) Carter. He married first, Sept. 6, 1855, Mary Adella, daughter of Amos and Sarah H. (Sawyer[9]) Sawyer, born in Berlin, Nov. 5, 1837. They settled in Columbus, Georgia, where she died June 8, 1862, leaving a son and daughter who were brought by their father to the home of the grandparents coming through the tedious and sometimes dangerous journey through the Rebel and Union armies. He married second, July 12, 1870, Mary A. Fowler of Springfield, Mass., and had one son, born April 17, 1871.

Mr. Carter's life was devoted to music, beginning as a teacher of a singing school and later studying music several years in Boston. Then going South he built up a successful business in Columbus, which he was obliged to leave on returning North, when he opened a music store in Springfield, which he managed until a short time before his death. He leaves besides his wife, two sons, his daughter, Addie A., who married Jan. 9, 1878, George N. Southwick, died at her home in Marlboro, Mass., July 26, 1889. The oldest son, William A. Carter is living in Springfield, the younger, Horace C. Carter, in Somerville.

JAMES Coolidge Carter[7] (12520), Vol. II, p. 268, died at his home in New York City, Feb. 14, 1905. He was born in Lancaster, Mass., Oct. 14, 1827, son of Major Solomon and Elizabeth (White[6]) Carter. He was educated in Derby Academy, Hingham, Mass., and Harvard College, graduating LL. B. in 1850; and in 1853 from Harvard Law School and established a practice in New York City, where he has since resided. Faithful study, hard work and a natural talent for the law soon placed him on the high-road to success; he received the degree of LL. D. His fame was international, he was recognized as one of America's most talented and learned lawyers. He was appointed by Gov. Tilden in 1875, a member of a commission to devise a form of municipal government for the cities of the state. He was an author and has written many papers on professional and legal subjects. He was also council in the Alaskan seal controversy between Great Britain and the United States. Two years ago he gave the Public Library of Lancaster, 300 views in Egypt, bound in eight volumes. At the 250th anniversary of the town, June, 1903, he was the first one selected to deliver the oration, but on account of advanced age was obliged to decline. At the time of his death he was a member of the law firm of Carter, Ledyard & Milburn.

WILLIAM Franklin Hubbard[8] (16833), Vol. II, p. 630, died Feb. 16, 1905, in Pinehurst, N. C., where he and his wife were on a pleasure trip. Mr. Hubbard was born in Boston, Mass., Mar. 8, 1843, son of William Winchester and Harriet Maria (Hoyt) Hubbard, moved with his father to Manchester, N. H., in 1860. He was in business with his father in the manufacture of doors, sash and blinds, until 1886, when he became sole proprietor, and under his guiding and inspiring hand it had attained large proportion as compared with its original humble start. Mr. Hubbard was modest and unassuming and devoted his entire attention to business. Mr. Hubbard married first, May 6, 1878, Clara Leach of Northware, N. H., he married second, May 22, 1888, Belle Kelly of Pittsfield, N. H., who survives him, also his aged father and two sisters.

Mrs. EMMA Harriet (Hubbard[8]) Colby (16836), Vol. II, p.

631, died at her father's in Manchester, N. H., June 18, 1905. She was born in Boston, Mass., July 26, 1851, daughter of Wm. Winchester and Harriet Maria (Hoyt) Hubbard, moved with her parents to Manchester in 1850; she married Nov. 1876, Charles Cleveland Colby. They resided for a time in Chicago, Ill., when her health failing she returned to her father's, but her native air failed to restore her health and her friends have watched her fading day by day. Her father and sister, Miss Martha W Hubbard have the sympathy of all in their double affliction.

Mrs. Lucy Jane (Saunders) Dodge, widow of Amos Madison Dodge[8] (2666), Vol. I, p. 224, died at the home of her daughter in Georgetown, Mass., June 4, 1905. She was born in Rowley, Mass., May 25, 1814, daughter of John and Lucy (Bradstreet) Saunders, married in Rowley, Dec. 19, 1841, Amos Madison, son of Phineas Jr, and Mercy (Nelson) Dodge[7] (2628), and grandson of Capt. Amos and Olive (Dole) Nelson of Rowley Mr. Dodge was a farmer and stone mason, he was strong, kind, generous and of quick preceptions, industrious and hard working. His death was caused by an accident while working as a mason, Mar 7, 1874. Mrs. Dodge has lived with her only child, Mrs. Jophanas Adams, where she has been tenderly cared for in her declining years; and many will miss the pleasant face of Aunt Lucy.

LUKE White[7] (7377), Vol. I, p. 623, died in Whitingham, Vt., Jan. 30, 1905. He was born in Colerain, Mass., Sept. 8, 1816, son of Thomas and Laura (Smith) White. Mr. White was a farmer and spent his long life in his native place; and when we called upon him with other cousins in 1899, he bore well his 83 years, and in speaking of his condition said he wished he had chosen a wife instead of a pipe, at the age of thirty; and would if he were to live his life over, as he was tired of depending upon hired help. Mr. White was much interested in the history of his family and gave many facts and items of interest in connection with the various branches living in his vicinity. He went to Whitingham intending to spend a few weeks, but the end came suddenly.

ROYAL ANCESTRY OF JOHN PRESCOTT,

FOUNDER OF LANCASTER, MASS.

11th Lineage. Neville of Raby (See Burke's Extinct Peerage.)

1. Siward, Earl of Northumberland, son of the Danish Earl Berne, m. Ethelflaed, dau. of (Alda?) the Saxon Earl of Northumberland by whom he had son Earl Waltheof. He m. (2) Godgifu, a widow. The fame of Siward survives in the chronicles and songs of Denmark. He erected a minster at Galmanho, near York, where he was buried. The minster was dedicated to St. Olaf of Norway, who was canonized in 1030. "When his end approached, the old fire blazed out in the aged warrior: he bade his attendants put his armor on him, and so, girt with harness and helmet, with his sword by his side, with his shield in his left hand and his battle axe in his right, the old Earl fared forth." (See History of City of York by Canon Raines, p. 43–62.)

2. Waltheof in 969, Earl of Northumberland, m. Judith, dau. of Lambert, Count of Lens, by wife Adelise, Countess of Albemarle and widow of Enguerrand, Count of Ponthieu, own sister to William, Conqueror, by whom son Earl Uchtred. Waltheof descended on his mother's side from a long line of Bernician ancestors, earls and kings, had his worst enemy on his own hearthstone in the person of his wife who sought his destruction. Daily, in his last imprisonment, Waltheof repeated the whole Psalter, which he had learned by heart in his childhood; and the months he remained in bonds were those of deep penitence. He was put to death June 15, 1016, by Wm. Conqueror, and was buried at Glastonbury finally. Waltheof was already Earl of Northampton and Huntington before he was Earl of Northumberland.

3. Uchtred, "the great Earl of Northumberland," made Earl of Northumberland in 980, during his father's lifetime, was murdered by Thursbrand in 1017. He m. Geoffrey, +

11. Geoffrey, 2d son of Geoffrey de Neville and Margaret his wife, was Gov. of Scarborough Castle and Appleby; m. Margaret, dau. and heiress of Sir John de Longuevilliers, Knt. of Hornby Castle, grandson of Eudo de Longuevilliers by wf. Clemence, dau. of John Matherby. Margaret was called in a deed, "consanguineous" to Hubert de Burgh, Earl of Kent and wife Margaret, who, according to Canon Raines, was a Scottish Princess. Hubert de Burgh was descended from Robert, Earl of Moreton, half-brother to the Conqueror and former owners of Hornby Castle, from whom it passed 1242. Geoffrey de Neville was jure uxoris lord of Hornby Castle, Co. Lancaster, and left sons whose names are unknown to the compiler: one of whom was father to Sir John de Neville and one was father to Robert de Neville. Sir John ob. s. p. and left Hornby to his cousin Robert. Sir Geoffrey died 1289, having then Hornby, Tunstall, Weaton, Warrington and Cancefield and Farleton, with other lordships and manors in other counties.

Wm. Harrington, who had married Margaret, dau. of Sir Robert N. and Anne, sister of Sir Thomas, and co-heir of her neice Margaret Beaufort, Duchess of Exeter with Sir John Langton.

14. Margaret, dau. heir to Sir Robert Neville of Hornby and his wife Anne Tunstal, m. Sir William Harrington, Knt. (11) 12th lineage.

12TH LINEAGE. FLEMING.

1. Michael Flandreusis or le Fleming, is said to have come with the Conqueror.

2. Michael le Fleming, pr. gr. son living 1126–7, when Stephen, afterward K. Stephen, founded the Abbey of Furness, then covering 65 acres, as it is said when the lands of Michael le Fleming were exempted from the exactions of the Abbot of Furness, the lands of the Abbot nearly surrounding those of Michael. While John de Cancefield was Abbot, Fleming bestowed on the Abbey the estate of Fordboc, or Fordbottle. Fleming was lord of manor of Aldingham, and when the barony of Egremont was divided, Wm. de Meschines granted to him the manors of Bechamet where their castle of Caernavon was, also Frissington, Waddington, Rotingdon, Waddicker and Arlockden. This castle of Caernavon was finally after several generations given to a younger son, and suffered to go to decay, being abandoned as a residence. Michael had five sons, William, Richard, and Daniel, a parson, rector of Church of Ursewick in 1170, and Jordan and Anselus, who took name of De Furneys, and a daughter Goditha.

3. William le F., lord of Aldingham m. Alice, d. of Gospatrick of Galloway.

4. Sir Michael le F., their son, lord of Aldingham, m. Agatha dau. of Henry, Lord Ravensworth ; had son William. William le F. had Aldingham and Gleaston Castle where he mostly resided.

5. Sir Michael le F. of Furness, Aldingham and Gleaston Castle, bore arms. William le F., son and heir of Aldingham and Gleaston Castle, had son and heir Sir Michael, who was drowned in the river Leven s. p., and his estate passed to his sister Alicia.

6. Alicia, lady of Aldingham, etc., m. Sir Richard Cancefield, Knt., lord of Cancefield and Farleton, Co. Lancaster, and had sons John and William who both died s. p., and dau. Agnes, sole heiress. In 1154 and 1189, Alicia, then a widow, confirmed to the Abbey of Cockersand the manor of Thurman, which manor passed through Cancefields to the Harringtons. In a deed of 1336 there is mention of a fine levied by Sir John H. and Joanna, his wife, on their manors of Aldingham and Thurnam, and the moiety of Ulverston.

7. Agnes de Cancefield, sole heir at last, lady of Aldingham, Cancefield, Thurnam and of Farleton, m., in reign of K. Ed. I, Sir Robert de Haverington of Harrington, Co. Cumberland, on the coast of the Irish Sea. They had John and Michael and dau. Elizabeth, who m. William, son and heir of Edward Neville of Liversedge.

8. Sir John de Harrington of Aldingham, Cancefield and Farleton, Co. Lanc., m. Juliana, dau. of Sir Richard Bellingham of Co. Cumb. Sir John was a minor in 1291; had summons to Parliament as a Baron from 18, Ed. 11, to his death in 1347. In 1340, he had license to make a park within his manor of Aldingham. Had Robert, oldest s. and heir, and Sir John of Farleton.

9. Sir John de Harrington, younger son of Sir John and Juliana de Harrington of Farleton, Melling parish, Co. Lanc., m., as Baine says, Katherine, sole dau. of Sir Adam Bannister, Knt., beheaded for treason in 1315, and the 4th dau. and co-heir of her mother, Margaret, sister to Sir Robt. Holland (and widow of Sir John Blackburn, by whom she had three daus., one of whom m. Sherburne of Stoneyhurst.) Some pedigrees give the wife (perhaps a second one) of Sir John Harrington as Katherine Sherburne, dau, of Sir Robert of Stoneyhurst. Sir John's wife Katherine was nurse to Philippa, Queen of K. Ed. III.

10. Sir Nicholas Harrington of Farleton, m. Isabel, dau. of Sir William English of Co. Cumberland, and had Sir William, Sir James, Sir Nicholas and dau. Isabel or Elizabeth, who m., about 1414, Sir John Stanley, Knt. of Lathom, f. of Thos., Lord Stanley, and gr. f. of Thos. Stanley, 1st Earl of Derby of that family.

11. Sir James Harrington, 2d son of Sir Nicholas (10) and Isabel English inherited the martial spirit of his ancestors and had his full share of war and military service. In 1403, he shared in the dearly bought victory of Hately Field, which settled the usurper Henry firmly on the throne and where Falstaff, as he declared, "fought an hour by Shrewsbury clock" when the impetuous Hotspur fell, pierced through the brain with an arrow, the panic stricken Welsh fled to their fastnesses in the mountains. In the retreat the Earl of Douglas, who had led the Scottish contingent, fell from a cliff, when he was captured by Sir James Harrington; a service for which he received from King Henry IV a pension of 100 marks per annum. He had joined the army which fought at Agincourt, but was recalled by the King, who sent him to defend the northern frontier against the Scots. When not engaged in a military career he appears to have taken an active part in the business of his county and his name occasionally crops up in the capacity of a Justice of the Peace. He m. Ellen, dau. of Thomas de Urswick of Urswick, Esq., which was within the manor of Aldingham and had son and heir, Sir Richard.

12. Sir Richard Harrington m. Elizabeth, dau. heiress of Sir William de Bradshagh of Blackrod and Westleigh, born 1403. Her father d. 1415 and her husband succeeded jure uxoris to the Blackrod and Westleigh estates. These possessions were considerably augmented, when after the death of her grandmother, dau. and heiress of John de Verdon, Knt., in 1437, she succeeded as remainder after her uncles of the half-blood John, Edmund and Robert de Pilkington to the manors of Brixworth, Co. Northampton and Brissingham in Norfolk. Sir Richard must have died about 1466–7, his Inquisition p. m. having been taken 7th year of Ed. II. His only dau. Elizabeth m. her cousin, the brave and unfortunate Sir Thomas Pilkington, who fought at Bosworth for K. Richard III and had his estates confiscated, and was slain at battle of Stoke, 1437.

13. Sir Wm. Harrington, son and heir of Sir Richard by marriage license dated 1422, m. his kinswoman Elizabeth, dau. of Edmund and sister of Sir Thos Pilkington aforesaid. He d. Aug 12, 3d year of Henry VII.

NOTES ON THE ABOVE LINEAGES.

"Hornby Castle, centuries ago, had attracted the eye of the Roman soldier, and coins and tessellated pavements discovered in various alterations of the castle prove that the value of its site strategic position was fully recognized even then. At Domesday Surrey Hornby was classed with Malling, Wennigetun as one manor, in which Ulf held nine carucates of land, and when the Conqueror came was held by Aleric whose gr. son Adam, son of Swain, had two daughters, Maud and Annabel. Maud m. Adam de Montbegon and the land of Hornby descended to Roger de Montbegon, his grandson who died 1225. In 1226, passed to a collateral relative, Henry de Montbegon, who in 1226 conveyed the manor of Hornby and castle to Hubert de Burgh, Chief Justice of England, and the Chamberlain of Shakespear's K. John. He d. 1242, and his widow, Margaret, married in York Cathedral, and a Scottish princess, Countess of Kent, continued in its possession till she died 1259. Then another claimant appeared in the person of Elena de Longuevilliers, who said her husband, John de L. had been entitled to the estate, and she as his widow to one-third part as her dower, and at last her claim was successful, and toward the close of the reign of K. H. II Hornby passed with Margaret, dau. of Sir John de Longuevilliers, to Geoffrey de Neville." (See Vol. 41, Historic Soc. Lancaster and Cheshire.)

"Raby Castle owes its splendor to John de Neville who, in 1379, obtained leave to make a castle of his manor of Raby, and to em-battle it and castellate its towers. It is in Co. Durham about six miles from Barnard Castle on the east side of an extensive park. It has a very imposing effect and a striking idea of the magnificence of feudal ages may be formed from its extent, its grandeur and well preserved state; its foundation is a rocky eminence, and it is environed by an embrazured wall and parapet, enclosing about two acres. It is said to date even as far back as Canute. The entrance hall is uncommonly grand, its vastness never failing to strike the beholder with admiration. The roof is arched and supported on six pillars with capitals. Here visitors leave their carriages, which are admitted to the hall, and pass out on the opposite side through the inner area and covered way. At one end is a flight of steps leading to the presence chamber, music room and billiard rooms; and over the hall is another spacious apartment, ninety feet in length, thirty-six in height and thirty-four in width. This was the room where the ancient baronial festivals were celebrated, and seven hundred knights who held of the Nevilles, are recorded to have been entertained here at one time. The walls are very thick, and the oven of the castle was converted into a wine cellar, the sides being divided into ten parts, each holding a hogshead of wine in bottles. The park, pleasure grounds and plantation correspond to the extent and dignity of the castle, one of its terraces being upwards of 2250 feet, nearly half a mile long. This seat continued to be the grand residence of the Nevilles, till the reign of Q. Eliz. Charles Neville, sixth and last earl of Westmoreland, engaged in a weak conspiracy to dethrone the Queen, and his immense estates, about 1584, reverted to the Crown." (N. E. H. G. Register, Vol. II.)

Sir Robert Harrington, oldest son of Sir John (8) 12th lineage m. Isabel, d. of Sir Nigell Loring, one of the original Knights of the Garter, and had a son John H., died s. p. Feb. 11, 1415, seized of Aldingham and the Advowson of Church of Aldingham, which he held by certain services to the Abbot and Convent of Furness Abbey, which right to these services had been stoutly denied and long contested by the Flemings, and which it had cost the Abbot £1500 to enforce, they long having been tenants of the King, and not the Abbot.

Sir William de Harrington, 2d son, succeeded his brother John, then æ. 26, and is by some believed to have built, or rebuilt Gleaston Castle, a mile and a half from Aldingham Church. He m. Elizabeth, oldest dau. co-heir of Tho. de Multon; had only dau; Elizabeth. His widow married Lord Hastings.

Elizabeth, heiress and dau. of Sir Wm. Harrington, m. Wm., Lord Bonville of Chuton Co., Chester, and had s. h. William, who took his mother's name.

William, Lord Harrington, was slain at battle of Wakefield, Dec. 31, 1460 (together with his two cousins of the younger line, Sir Thomas Harrington of Hornby, and his oldest son, Sir John Harrington.)

Cecilia, only child of Wm., Lord H., m. Thomas Grey, 1st Marquis Dorset, son of John, Lord Grey of Groley, whose widow Eliz. Wydville became Queen of K. Henry IV. The manors of Aldingham and Michelland which came from the earliest Flemings, passed to the Greys and on the attainder of Grey, Duke of Suffolk (father of Lady Jane Grey) passed to the Crown.

"On the western borders of rocky Cumberlands, where the salt breezes sweep with invigorating freshness from across the tumbling waves, and the sandstone cliffs are washed by the restless sea, is the quaint little fishing village or port of Harrington or Haverington, as written in earlier times. It is situated midway between Workington and Whitehaven and in sight of the lofty head-lands that run far out into the deep, and under the shadow of which, more than twelve centuries ago, the saintly Beza and her sisterhood established their little oratory. Long before the reign of K. Ed. I, it had given name to a sturdy race of warriors, who through several generations played their parts in the most important affairs of the nation as well as the county, and bore themselves bravely on many a well fought field. These Harringtons of Harrington, Co. Cumberland and of the manors of Aldingham, Gleaston Castle, Wrayholme Tower, Hornby Castle, Farleton, Arnside, Witherslack and other places in Lancashire, were allied with the most powerful houses in the land, and yet there was but one Lord Harrington of the stock."

"Harrington stands on the River Wyre and was, at the Conquest or soon after, given to Ivo de Taillebois, Baron of Kendal in Westmoreland, and the younger son of Count of Anjou." (From "Families of Lancashire and Cheshire" by James Croston.)

WHITE FAMILY QUARTERLY.

VOLUME III. JULY, 1905. NUMBER III.

"The Lord is good: a stronghold in the day of trouble."

JOHN A. SEATON.

John Ambrose Seaton[9] (26649), Vol. III, p. 598, died in Cleveland, Ohio, Aug. 5, 1905. He was born in Boston, Mass., Jan 5, 1832, son of Dr. Ambrose and Mary R. (Goss[8]) Seaton. He moved with his parents to Maysville, Ky., where he married Oct. 25, 1859, Margaret, dau. of George Wiles and Lydia (Hunt) Arthur, born in Cincinnati, Ohio, Oct. 5, 1840. Her father was of Scotch descent and her mother of English. They lived for a time in Maysville, then in Cleveland, where Mr. Seaton was engaged in General Insurance business. Mr. Seaton's family were at their summer home at Chautauqua Lake, N. Y., and he was about to join them, having stepped upon an electric car on his way to the Union depot, was standing upon the rear platform when he fell forward into the arms of the conductor, he thinking that the man had simply fainted carried him into a store, where his death was pronounced due to heart failure. Mr. Seaton was very much interested in the history and genealogy of his family, was also president of the class of '96 Chautauqua Literary and Scientific circle, as well as secretary and treasurer of the alumni association. He leaves besides his wife, three children, Misses Frances and Sarah, and George Ambrose Seaton of Cleveland, as well as a large circle of friends who will sympathize with them in their deep bereavement.

60. John Prescott, b. in Standish Parish, Lancashire, about 1604, his baptism is not recorded, there being a break in the records from 1602 to 1610, but we find his name in his father's will in 1608. He m. in Halifax Parish, Apr. 11, 1629, Mary Gawkroger or Platts. They lived for a time in Sowerby, where five of their children were born, three of whom were brought to America, two buried at Sowerby. In 1638, he was living in the Island of Barbadoes, owning more than ten acres of land on the Island as proved by an old record recently found upon the Island. In 1640, he came to New England, settled for a time in Watertown, where he had large grants of land alotted to him. In 1643 he associated himself with Thomas King and others, for the purpose of purchasing of Sholan, the Indian Sachem of the Nashaway tribe of Indians, a tract of land for a township, which was to be ten miles long and eight in breadth, known as the "Nashaway plantation," afterwards, Lancaster, Mass., one of the original settlers and considered the founder. The town received its name May 18, 1633, the name it is said being given in honor of Mr. Prescott, it being the name of his native county in England. Mary, wife of John Prescott, appears to have been the dau. of James and Martha (Ainsworth) Gawkroger, m. Sept. 5, 1601, his will written 1625, a clothier of Sowerby, she was bapt. Mar. 15, 1606-7, and granddaughter of James and Jenet (Fairbank) Gawkroger or Platts, m. Dec. 2, 1571. The children of John and Mary bear the names of the children found in James Gawkroger Jr.'s will in many instances, as Martha, Sarah, Anne or Hannah and Lydia, the children, grand and great grandchildren of John Prescott will be given in thc October Quarterly as far as the records can be obtained, with full dates.

OBITUARY.

MRS. E. FOSTER BAILEY.

Mrs. DOROTHY S. (Kimball[7]) Bailey (15121), Vol. II, p. 491. died at her home in Fitchburg, Mass., Mar. 3, 1905. Mrs. Bailey was born in Fitchburg, Aug. 3, 1817, daughter of Ephraim and Dorothy (Sawyer[6]) Kimball and granddaughter of Phineas Jr., and Mary (Prescott[5]) Sawyer (712). She was married June 4, 1846, Ebenezer Foster, son of Ebenezer and Lucy (Goldsmith) Bailey, born in Westmoreland, N. H., Feb. 19, 1820. Mrs. Bailey was from early life a devoted Christian, a very efficient worker in the church and Sunday school, and for many years assisted in the service of song, she was active in the Woman's Christian Temperance Union and ready for every good word and work. Although Mr. and Mrs. Bailey were married nearly 59 years, death had never before broken the family circle, she is survived by her husband, and by four children, Ebenezer, Harrison, William Kimball Bailey and Miss Anna M. Bailey and a large circle of friends.

Mrs. OLIVE Elizabeth (Childs[9]) Edwards (29) p. 55, Vol. I, No. 2, "White Family Quarterly," died at her home in Holyoke, Mass., Feb. 27, 1905. Mrs. Edwards was born in New Braintree, Mass., Dec. 1, 1872; daughter of Henry Hinckley and Martha A. (Howe[8]) Childs, being the third in their family of eleven children and the first death in their family. She was married in Holyoke, June 13, 1895, to Charles Samuel, son of Samuel Finley and Adeline Fidelia (Gridley) Edwards, born in Southampton, Mass., Oct. 22, 1872. For a few years after their marriage they lived in Springfield, Mass., where they united with Christ Church and have since retained their membership, Mrs. Edwards was an active member and a former officer of the Rathbone Sisters. She was a devoted wife and mother, a sweet Christian woman in every way, always of a sunny temperament, even after she had become a great sufferer. She is survived by her husband and three little children, Elizabeth Adeline, Roger Gerhart and Kingsley Edwards, also her father and mother, brothers and sisters, Mrs. B. V. Brooks of Greenwich Village, George E. of Wilbraham, Charles H. of New Haven, (Conn.), Willard T. of Petersham, Mrs. Harry Brainard of South Hadley Falls, and Robert, Fred, Arthur, Esther and Herman Childs with their mother in Holyoke, her father, who for a number of years conducted a successful business college in Holyoke is now in the West. Though we sympathize with all her friends in their bereavement, yet our heart goes out to little Kingsley, who will never have even a memory of his loving mother to cherish, only as he receives it from the words of others.

WHITE FAMILY QUARTERLY.

VOLUME III. OCTOBER, 1905. NUMBER IV.

"The Lord is good: a stronghold in the day of trouble."

REPORT OF THE TENTH REUNION, 1905.

Whalom Park, Fitchburg, Mass., Aug. 30, 1905; the tenth annual reunion of the "Association of the Descendants of John White of Wenham and Lancaster," was called to order in the pavilion at 10 45 A. M., with the President, John B. White of Kansas City, in the chair. The President in his opening remarks, made tender allusions to the missing ones whose faces had been so familiar in the reunions of the past, and of the grand reunion that shall by and by be held on the other side.

Prayer was offered by Vice President, John F. White of Somerville, Mass. The records of the last meeting of 1904 were read by the Assistant Secretary and approved as read.

George A. White, Treasurer of the Association, presented the following report:

1904.
Aug. 24,	To membership fees	$8 00
	To annual dues	23 50
1905.
Mar. 8,	To annual dues	50
Aug. 29,	To annual dues	5 00
		$37 00

1904.
Aug. 31,	By cash paid to Miss M. L. White . .	$33 42
1905.
Aug. 30,	Bal. in Treasury	3 58
		$37 00

Report accepted. Treasurer White called the attention of the Association to the fact that many whose names are on the membership roll are behind with the annual dues, and urged that some action should be taken, looking to a time limit when such names should be stricken from the roll. He suggested that a better system of bookkeeping should be adopted, and recommended a Card Index system. No motion was made, consequently no action on these suggestions

President White took the floor and in a strong earnest speech deplored the lack of interest on the part of many, in fact a large portion of the Association. He called attention to the fact that about 3,000 circulars had been sent out by the Secretary in calling this meeting, and that less than two hundred people had responded. He urged that more attention should be given to the vital points of the life of the Association; that more personal work should be done by the individual members; that methods should be adopted that would enthuse the thousands who belong to the family; that not only our annual reunion should be better attended, but that there should be a larger and wide-spread interest in the magnificent Genealogical work that had been given to the family and to the world as the result of Miss Myra L. White's years of patient and persistent labor. George A. White of Franklin Park, Mass., moved that a committee of ten be appointed to arouse such enthusiasm before the next annual gathering. The motion was carried by a unanimous vote. The chair appointed as that Committee:

George A. White, Franklin Park, Mass.
Mrs. E. M. Wilder, Leominster, Mass.
Miss Fannie P. Gates, Leominster, Mass.
John H. Leavitt, Waterloo, Iowa.
Miss Edith L. Harrington, Westminster, Mass.

Miss Ethel L. Wilder, Clinton, Mass.
Mrs. Flora G. Macomber, Worcester, Mass.
Joseph H. White, Antwerp, N. Y.
Byron A. White, Parkersburg, W. Va.
John F. White, Somerville, Mass.

Opportunity was given for the collection of dues to which many responded.

At 11.45 recess was taken until 1.30 P.M. for dinner. At 2 P.M. the Association was called to order by the President who announced that the first order of business for the afternoon would be the reading of the "Historical Sketch" that was authorized by the meeting of 1904, Josiah's Ten Sons. John F. White of Somerville, Mass., came forward and for thirty minutes was given the kindest attention by the audience present, while he read the paper prepared for the occasion which he had named, "The Old Abbey and Its First Occupant," which included Josiah's five daughters with the ten sons. A vote of thanks was tendered Mr. White after the reading. Moved and seconded the sketch be printed in the Quarterly. The President declared the motion carried. Mr. J. F. White suggested that such a vote was probably subject to the condition that the Editor of the Quarterly could connect with the manuscript.

The Committee on Memorial to be placed in the old cemetery at Lancaster reported as follows :

To the officers and members of the Association of the Descendants of John White of Wenham and Lancaster:

Your Committee, appointed to ascertain the style, costs, etc. of a suitable Memorial to be placed in the old Cemetery at Lancaster, beg leave to make the following report. Your Committee after careful consideration, decided that a boulder of black or dark Granite, with a Bronze Tablet containing the inscription, set in the side, would be a suitable memorial. And that it might have form and comeliness, it seems advisable to make the dimensions 4 ft. 7 in. high, 3 ft. 4 in. wide and 1 ft. 3 in. thick, with bronze tablet 1 ft. 8 in. by 2 ft. 4 in. The specifications given to the various firms who have furnished estimates, included the above as to the stone with the bronze tablet securely set, said tablet to bear inscription of about 164 letters and figures, the whole complete set in the Old Cemetery at Lancaster, on a suitable foundation laid in cement (Portland cement preferred). On these specifications we have the following estimates:

Chas. E. Chase, Agent, $180.00.
Taynter Construction Co., $175.00.
Milne & Chalmers, $155.00.
W. D. Blanchard, $110.00.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

JOHN F. WHITE,
GEO. A. WHITE,
MYRA L. WHITE,
CHAS. S. HOUGHTON,
Committee.

George A. White urged that the father of such a family ought to have a monument and that the family was large enough to get him one, and suggested that a Committee be appointed and $150.00 be raised to cover the cost of such a monument. It was moved that the Committee on Memorial be made permanent. Motion carried. It was moved that $150.00 be raised for the purpose of a Memorial. Carried.

The President said that no time was so good for the purpose as now and that he would head the subscription with one tenth of the amount. Subscriptions were immediately taken and $59.00 realized of which sum $37.50 was paid.

In the question of whether the Quarterly should be continued, Miss Myra L. White stated: that under the present conditions the Quarterly only paid about one-half the cost of the printing, and that for her own work, it was entirely without remuneration, that it had been necessary for her to do work outside of the White Family work, to pay her own living expenses. That it rested with the Association whether they would have the Quarterly continued or not.

The reason for the delay of the second and third numbers this year was that her whole energy had been given to finish the third volume of the Genealogy, but that work is done. Now the question is, Do you want the Quarterly? The remarks were ably seconded by the President and George A. White. No action was taken.

The next order of business was the election of officers. President White stated that he was not a candidate for re-election. That he appreciated the honor of holding the office for five years, and asked the privilege of nominating his successor. He then placed in nomination for the office of President for the ensuing year, John F. White of Somerville, and the Association ratified the nomination by a unanimous vote. Mr. J. F. White thanked the Association for their kindly confidence, and stated that he could not accept the honor they would confer. Many words by many speakers were used bearing upon the question, and the final result was that Mr. John B. White, of Kansas City, consented to accept the office for another year followed by the hearty applause of all present. On motion the entire board of officers of last year was re-elected, as follows:

President — John B. White, Kansas City, Mo.
Vice Pres —George S. Houghton, Reading, Mass.
Vice Pres.—Joseph H. White, Antwerp, N. Y.
Vice Pres.—Lucius A. Warner, Beacon Falls Ct.
Vice Pres.—Hon. John W. Kimball, Fitchburg, Mass.
Vice Pres.—John F. White, Somerville, Mass.
Vice Pres.—Mrs. Sarah A. Morrison, Tidioute, Pa.
Vice Pres.—Henry R. Smith, Leominster, Mass.
Vice Pres. -Henry D. White, Grand Valley, Pa.
Vice Pres.—Charles H. White, Grandin, Mo.
Vice Pres —Milo S. Harrington, Westminster, Mass.
Treasurer—George A. White, Franklin Park, Mass.
Secretary—Miss Myra L. White, Haverhill, Mass.

Motion was made and seconded that the third Wednesday of August be the permanent day for the reunion in the future. Carried.

It was moved that the place of the next meeting should be at Wenham. Carried.

Voted to adjourn.

JOHN F. WHITE, Assistant Secretary.

LAYING OF THE CORNER STONE OF THE DR. JOHN F. WHITE MEMORIAL SCHOOL.

Youngsville, Pa., Oct. 11.—Tuesday, October 10, 1905, will long be remembered by the citizens of this town as a gala day and one that bore great good to the community. It was the day set for the laying of the corner stone of the J. B. White memorial school, erected in memory of Dr. J. F. White, son of the donor. For weeks past the matter has been one of discussion and the committee in charge have worked hard for the success of the event. Not an untoward event occurred to mar the exercises and the perfect weather, the warm air and the cloudless skies drew forth an immense crowd to participate.

The school children, who will enjoy the gift, turned out in goodly numbers and marched to the site of the new school building in perfect alignement. The many children marching with sprightly step called forth many remarks and in their simple, pretty way contributed much to the joyousness of the day. At the site of the new building space had been reserved for them and they filed into their place. The McKinnery cornet band furnished music and a children's chorus, given in the round, full tones of youthful singers, echoed and re-echoed in the hearts of the hearers long after the strains had died away.

The meeting of the citizens was called to order by Dr. C. H. Jacobs, of the Youngsville school board, and in a few well chosen words he called attention to the splendid gift and to the place that its donor held in the hearts of the people of the community. Music was then given by the band and a superb chorus was rendered by the school children.

The following articles were then placed in the box: "History of Dr. John Franklin White," in whose memory the school is being built, and his photograph; copy of the Youngsville paper containing an account of his death; letters written by Dr. White while in school and also shortly before his death; copy of exercises of "yesterday" and list of names of borough officers and members of the band; coin of 1905; memorial letter by Mrs. Hemingway in memory of her brother: names of the architects and builders.

Rev. Mr. Burns, of the Youngsville Methodist Episcopal church, then gave the address of the day, and in his splendid way spoke of the good that such a gift can do to the people of a town and of the influence that it will undoubtedly have upon the men and women of the future, the children of today. He also feelingly and touchingly referred to the young man in whose memory the noble pile is to be erected. Of his sturdy manhood and of the grief of his father at his death and of the desire to fittingly perpetuate his memory. The address was splendidly arranged and excellently given and from the hearts of the audience there went forth a silent yet eloquent "Amen" to the speaker's words.

Hon. J. B. White, the donor of the building, who had travelled all the way from Kansas City to be present at the exercises was then welcomed and gave a short but eminently fitting address. During his discourse he read a number of letters from persons interested in the welfare of Youngsville and her schools. Among them a memorial letter written by Emma Ruth White, and a letter from the President of Williams College, Williamstown, Mass., a close friend of Mr. White and his family. The President regretted his inability to be present and announced his intention of being present at the dedication. Mr. White, in his address, made mention of the fact that no credit or honor should be attached to himself as the result of his building the school, but that he did it simply because he wished to perpetuate good through the memory of his son, rather than erecting a marble shaft in the cemetery.

It was a memorable day and the young people who witnessed it are now waiting most patiently for the new building to be completed.

The building is to be a fine one of brick and stone and will be erected at a cost of about $18,000 and will be finished with all the modern and up-to-date improvements. It occupies a commanding position near the center of the town and will be an improvement that will be at once permanent and beautiful. The plans have been carefully drawn with attention to the lighting and ventilation and the pupils of Youngsville will have a structure second to none in the country when all is completed.

The new building is to bear the name of "Dr. John F. White Memorial School." Mr. White has many friends in Youngsville, it being his old home. The programme was concluded by a selection by the band, the placing of the corner stone, a song by the school "The Old Flag Never Touched the Ground," and the benediction by Rev. J. P. Burns.

DOCTOR WHITE.

John Franklin, son of John Barber and Arabel (Bowen) White was born in Tidioute, Pa., Nov. 9, 1875 and the following year moved with his parents to Youngsville, Pa., then to "White's Mill" now Grandin, Mo., and later to Kansas City, Mo., where he graduated from the High school, took a two year's course in the Kansas City Medical College and in March, 1898, he graduated from the Missouri Medical College, St. Louis, Mo. The following summer he took a course at the Wilkins Eye and Ear Infirmary, Philadelphia, Pa. He began the practice of medicine in Grandin, in the winter of 1898. In the fall of 1899, he passed a creditable state examination in Louisiana, settling in Fisher, Sabine Parish, Louisiana, where he was in charge of the hospital department of the "Louisiana Long Leaf Lumber Co., also a stockholder and director. Dr. White was appointed local surgeon for the "Kansas City, Pittsburg & Gulf R.R." at Fisher, and held the position until his death.

On the morning of May 11, 1900, he was sitting on the steps of his office talking with a friend, with his gun across his knee, it slipped and the hammer, striking on the step, one barrel of the gun was discharged, wounding him in the breast and face. For a time it was thought that his wounds were doing well and he would soon regain his health; but blood poisoning developing he d. at the St. Joseph's hospital, Kansas City, Mo., June 11, 1900.

He was a young man of pure habits and most conscientious principles and was beloved by all, both in a professional and business way, winning many friends wherever he was known, and seemed to be destined for a useful life. He was laid at rest in the family lot at Youngsville.

OBITUARY.

Mrs. Eloise (Walker) Wilder, widow of Charles Peabody Wilder[8] (5386), Vol. I, p. 461. died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Wilbur F. Winchester in Indianapolis, Ind., Aug. 10, 1905. Mrs. Wilder was the daughter of Josiah and Frances (Shoff) Walker, born in Irville, Ohio, Mar. 19, 1827; married Nov. 8, 1848, and they lived for several years in Newark, Ohio, where he was proprietor of the old book store known as "The Sign of the Big Book," which is still occupied as a book store. Mr. Wilder was for many years organist of the Episcopal church in Newark; but nearly forty years ago they settled in Indianapolis, where he was identified with the business and social life of the city, they being among the original members of St. Paul's Cathedral. He died in Cleveland, Ohio, of neuralgia of the heart, Aug. 20, 1893, and Mrs. Wilder has since made her home with her daughter. She was a woman of unusual talent being an artist as well as an occasional writer for magazines and periodicals; she was for several years secretary of the Ladies Aid Society, also for a Ladies Society for the relief of the poor, and was one of a committee of three ladies from that society who after the Chicago fire went in person to carry food and clothing to the suffering. She was an active worker for the soldiers in three wars, the Mexican, Civil and Spanish American. At the age of seventy-eight she still kept up her French and historic researches and at the time of her death was engaged in writing a series of historical papers at the urgent solicitation of the magazines. Mrs. Wilder was a lineal descendant of the recognized historic founders of our great country and by virtue of their distinguished services, she was an honored member of the Colonial Dames of America, Order of the Descendants of Colonial Governors, Daughters of Founders and Patriots, Daughters of the American Revolution, United States Daughters of the War of 1812, also a member of the Governor Thomas Dudley Family Association.

She is survived by four children and three grandchildren, namely: Mrs. Alice W. Morton and her son, John R. Morton of Newport News, Virginia, Mrs. Wilbur F. Winchester of Indianapolis; Mr. Charles Alonzo Wilder of Cleveland, and Mrs. A. L. Preston and her two children, Ruth Adelaide and Robert Wilder Preston of Fairfield, Ind. Mrs. Wilder was buried at Newark, beside her husband.

Deborah Laura Holbrook[7] (15826), Vol. II, p. 537, died at her home in Ashburnham, Mass., Dec. 22, 1903. She was born in Ashburnham, Mar. 9, 1817; dau. of Jesse and Nancy (White[6]) Holbrook (15799). Her long life had been spent in her old home, where she was a member of the Congregational church.

William Loring Holbrook[7] (15830), died in Ashburnham, Mass., May 12, 1904. He was born in Ashburnham, Aug. 2, 1826; son of Jesse and Nancy (White[6]) Holbrook (15799.) Like his sister he was a member of the Congregational church and they are buried with the family in the old cemetery.

Capt. David Augustus,[7] son of David and Sarah (Chandler) White[6] (15806) Vol. II, p. 538, died in Gloucester, Mass., Nov. 25, 1904. Capt. White was born in Gloucester, Sept. 19, 1834, married in Gloucester, Oct. 4, 1860, Lavinia Collins Proctor. They had one daughter, Genevieve Carroll, who died at the age of six years.

Mrs. Susan W. (Youngman[8]) Cheney (9945), Vol. II, p. 89, died in Lebanon, N. H., Dec., 1904. Mrs. Cheney was born in Peterboro, N. H., Apr. 11, 1831, daughter of Willard and Jane (Little[7]) Youngman; married Jan. 22, 1852, Elias H., son of Moses and Abigail (Morrison) Cheney, born in Holderness, N.H., Feb. 25, 1828. Mr. Cheney was United States Consul to Matanzas, Cuba, for three years. Mar. 10, 1899, Mr. Cheney sailed for Curacao, West Indies, as United States Consul which office he still holds. Mrs. Cheney leaves besides her husband, two sons, Fred Willard Cheney of Concord, N. H., and Harry Morrison Cheney and a daughter, Mrs. George Hamilton Kelley of Lebanon.

Mrs. Louisa A. (Stearns) Little, wife of Thomas J. Little[8] (9948), Vol. II, p. 90, died in Charlton, Mass., Oct. 12, 1905. They lived in Worcester, Mass., now in Charlton. Mrs. Little leaves besides her husband, three daughters, Mrs. Walter E. Field of Worcester, Miss Kate A., and Annie O. Little.
